A Zoo Cobra Fight.
A Girl to Be Proud Of.
It's Their Business.
A 3-Cent Notification.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN NEW YORK'S Bronx zoological gardens yesterday morning, two cobras fought, their fangs pouring poison into many wounds. When they had fought for a while, keepers separated them with a stream of cold water.

One cobra is a newcomer. The other has been winding around his zoo cage for fourteen years and dislikes intrusion. Dr. Ditmars, ruler of the captured snakes, says they must fight it out, there is no other way. He will not separate them.

To comfort him, the old snake, defeated, was treated to a Texas gopher snake, six feet long. This the old cobra ate sulkily.

A COBRA FIGHT is neither pleasant nor important, but how like human beings that began a similar "cobra fight" in 1914 with poison gas, worse than cobra poison.

The United States provided the "cold shower" that cooled off that fight, pouring millions of men and billions of dollars onto the conflict, most foolishly. It would have been wiser to let them fight it out, and that is what the United States will do next time.

AN ENERGETIC, ambitious young woman is Amelia Earhart Putnam. The power that you see in her eyes is genuine. Yesterday she landed on the Atlantic edge, having flown from the Pacific in 19 hours 14 minutes 40 seconds.

Except for failure of her gas pump, which compelled a stop in Ohio, she would have "hopped" from ocean to ocean, non-stop, defeating all records.

AS IT IS, she sets a new long distance record, flying 2,019 miles without a stop, nineteen miles farther than she went on her non-stop flight across the Atlantic recently.

This is a young lady to be proud of, and the wonderful fact is that there are a million like her in the United States, with just as much will power and ambition, waiting to be discovered.

BRITAIN AND France agree, in consultation with each other, they will "stabilize Europe." That is their business, and it is well that they have come to it at last.

Hitherto, the plan has been to have the United States stabilize and finance Europe by forfeiting ten billions of dollars, after foolishly spending other tens of billions in a war that did not involve the United States.

SEVEN MEMBERS of the British cabinet are on their way to the empire parley at Ottawa. Stanley Baldwin and six other able Britishers are in a party that will discuss Britain's welfare with representatives of all the British dominions.

That party should have included Lord Beaverbrook, the young man from Canada who gave Britain the best idea it has had in many years, "free trade within the empire." Britons buying from Britons, as we have free trade within our states, Americans buying from Americans.

GOV. ROOSEVELT, when nominated in Chicago, created a favorable impression by flying out nine hundred miles, with his wife and young son, to thank the delegates and say:

"I accept."

He did away with the usual solemn delay about notification.

Speaker Garner goes about it even more simply, saying:

"No formal notification necessary. Just drop me a line to make it official, that will do."

Notifying him will cost only three cents, even with the extra cent for postage.

Andrew Jackson was not more democratic.

THE ASSOCIATION of Hotel Men decides to support Gov. Roosevelt and the Democratic ticket, because the Democratic platform has a better prohibition plank that the Republican platform.

Republican politicians will not weep about this. For every hotel owner that votes Democratic, there are at least a hundred speakeasy owners and bootleggers that will vote the other way, if they think the Republican prohibition plank the weaker.

A WISE MAN from India whose name was Shri Meher Baba, came from India not long ago, announced as "the holy man" who had not spoken a word for seven years.

He was to open his mouth and speak on important things on arriving.

Now he says his silence will continue because "conditions are not yet right." Wise Mr. Baba. He should be elected to Congress.

THE LAST TWO volumes of "Every Man's Encyclopedia," just published, undertakes to "set you right" on George Washington. The cherry tree story was "Parson Weem's silly invention."

Washington was not a great Sunday School hero. He got angry, liked picnics and barbecues, "danced and had flirtations," attended the races, raced his own horses, played cards for money, ran up bills at clubs, for alcoholic drinks, etc. All this, true or false, does not interest the public.

It may be taken for granted that any man able to beat the British was unlike a wax figure in many ways. The main thing

P. S. C. RULE SOUGHT BY PINCHOT

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, July 14.—Gov. Pinchot today requested the resignation of Public Service Commissioner Emerson Collins on account of ill health.

If Collins, a resident of Williamsport, does not voluntarily retire, the Governor wrote the commissioner that he would be forced to the "unpleasant necessity" of formal action for removal and allegations of inefficiency and neglect of duty.

Pinchot wrote Collins that he had been unable to fulfill the duties of his office for 30 months, during which he had received salary of $25,000.

INESCAPABLE DUTY

The Governor added:

"I cannot in good conscience call upon capable employes to resign from motives of economy, as I must from day to day, if I overlook the situation in your case."

FOUR RESCUED FROM FIRES

An automobile truck crashing into a house and pole in the Freeport road, Springdale, today started fires in three homes and endangered the lives of two women and two children. The truck broke a pole carrying high tension wires, then demolished the porch of the home of Mrs. Josephine Schnorr, at 620 Freeport road.

As the pole broke, wires crossed, causing fires in the homes of Alex McConaghy, John Jarmue and Charles Martin, in Freeport road. Regis and Bernard McConaghy, aged 7 and 3, were on the second floor of their home with their grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Greiner. The flames shot from the fuse box at the foot of the stairway, trapping the woman and children.

Mrs. McConaghy was in the yard. She and William Leighliter, a neighbor, ran up the stairs through smoke and flames and carried the children to safety.

Leighliter then assisted Mrs. Grenier to the street. Firemen extinguished the blaze and then ran to the home of Jarmue and extinguished a fire near the fuse box in the attic.

Doolittle Escapes In Airplane Crash

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 14.—(AP.)—James Doolittle, aviator, escaped uninjured here this morning when his low-wing Orion monoplane, a new speed creation, crashed in landing at the Evansville municipal airport. The impact drove the gasoline tank through one wing.

AIMEE M'PHERSON HUTTON

Hemorrhage of Brain Threatened as Result of Fall

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—(AP.)—Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton was reported by her physician, Dr. Edward H. Williams, as being in a "precarious" condition today.

Her removal from a Lake Elsinore resort to a Los Angeles hospital in an ambulance was ordered. She was reported to have lapsed into a coma last night. Dr. Williams said:

"Mrs. Hutton's condition can now be regarded as precarious. She must be removed to a hospital and kept there. There is a strong possibi" she may suffer a cerebral hemorrhage from the brain concussion."

Mrs. Hutton has been ill since she suffered a nervous breakdown more than a year ago.

Last Saturday she suffered concussion of the brain when she fainted and fell on being informed her husband, David Hutton, had been found guilty by a jury in a breach of promise suit brought by Myrtle Joan St. Pierre.

FIRE AT CONEY BURNS CLOTHES OF 5,000

Property Loss at N. Y. Resort Placed at Three Millions

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—The heart of Coney Island is a $3,000,000 ash pile today, but the bands play on.

Fire that started in rubbish under the Boardwalk—Coney Island's polyglot promenade—swept five square blocks of the resort late yesterday.

While a carousel sent its monotonmous music piping down through rolling waves of smoke, the fire, bellowed by a fresh breeze off the ocean, destroyed:

Fifty bungalows and houses, six bathhouses and bathing pavilions, 200 parked automobiles, the pergola, the "Streets of Bagdad" (an amusement place), a small apartment building, five blocks of the Boardwalk and most of the buildings fronting on it.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS

Many thousands were made homeless. At least 5,000 bathers among the 25,000 in the surf at the time, lost their clothes and personal possessions as the fire destroyed bath houses in which their clothes were lockered.

Two hundred persons were injured seriously enough to need

HOT WAVE HERE TO CONTINUE

Pittsburgh continued to swelter under an oppressive heat wave today, with prospect that the mercury would equal the 91 degree mark recorded at the Weather Bureau yesterday.

The thermometer was up two degrees higher this morning over yesterday, and the humidity had jumped 20 points. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman saw possibility of scattered thunder showers late today. Light showers early today had little effect on the heat.

The heat wave has scorched the entire nation. Thunderstorms, wind and hail added to the discomfort and caused property damage yesterday.

Illinois G.O.P. Names Man Senate Banned

CHICAGO, July 14.—(AP.)—Frank L. Smith, of Dwight, was elected Republican national committeeman for Illinois on the first ballot at a reconvened state committee session today after a deadlock that lasted throughout 31 ballots taken at the Republican National Convention.

Smith is the former congressman and state commerce commissioner who thrice knocked at the door of the United States Senate and was refused admittance.

Nine Shot as Snipers Open Fire on Carnival

LEONARDTOWN, Md., July 14.—(INS.)—The little traveling carnival that played here for a week ended its stand early today with a "wild west show" that was not on the program.

Nine of the troupers suffered bullet and buckshot wounds when the desperadoes—six men in an automobile—fled after pumping buckshot and bullets into the tents.

Three of the most seriously injured were taken to a Washington hospital for treatment and released. They were Clarence V. Hill, 28, Greensburg, Pa.; Fran Blizzard, 32, of Elksdale, W. Va., and Mrs. Anna Blizzard, his wife.

Saturday William Stanley, 21, of Four Oaks, N. C., was shot three times. He is in a serious condition at a local hospital. Stanley managed a raffling stand. The showmen do not know the identity of the ambushers.

State police said ill-feeling among some of the residents, who complained about how the carnival's games of chance were operated, apparently culminated in the "shooting up" of the show, known as Roland's Carnival.

The police said Mrs. Blizzard carried her baby in her arms when the shooting started but the baby was unharmed.

FRANCE BARES TEXT OF DEBT AGREEMENT

Shows Europe Solid Against America On Payments

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

PARIS, July 14.—The "gentlemen's agreement" which accompanied the signing of the Lausanne reparations treaty and created a sensation throughout Europe and America when its existence became known, was made public by the French foreign office today and simultaneously released for publication in London.

The agreement, which made ratification of the reparations treaty contingent upon a settlement of war debts between the signatories and the United States, was enshrouded with a heavy cloak of secrecy even as it was made. The agreement provided:

"No precise reference to the present arrangement (the gentlemen's agreement) will appear in the text of the accord with Germany (the Lausanne treaty.)"

ACTION PUT UP TO U. S.

The agreement granted its signatories the right to explain to its own Parliament the nature of the secret pact.

The pact continues:

"The accord of Lausanne will only enter definitely into force after the ratification foreseen in the aforesaid accord.

"As concerns the creditor governments in whose name this verbal agreement is signed, ratification will not be effected before a satisfactory settlement has been obtained between them and their creditors."

The agreement went on to provide that if this "satisfactory settlement" with the United States were obtained, then the Allies would ratify their accord with Germany, but in the cases where a settlement with the United States were not obtainable, the interested governments would confer regarding new procedure and the whole situation would be

Bell Back in Jail Awaiting Transfer

BUFFALO, July 14.—(INS.)—Tony Bell, former Fayette County (Pa.) detective, who confessed here to the murder of John Donohoe, Uniontown racketeer, a year after he had been tried and acquitted for the murder, was in a cell in the Erie County Jail today waiting transfer to Chillicothe federal penitentiary, where he will serve a three-year term for impersonating a dry agent.

Calles' Wife Saved, Party Enroute Home

BOSTON, July 14.—(INS.)—Saved from death by the skill of Dr. Harvey Cushing, famous brain surgeon, Senora Leonor Leorente Calles, young wife of ex-President Plutarco Elias Calles, of Mexico, started home today.

Glass Currency Bill Necessary Measure To End Deflation

THE SENATE HAS just approved the Glass currency measure, marking a worthy step toward ending the money fright which is prolonging the depression.

It has ratified a proposal to grant "circulation privilege" to all United States government bonds bearing 3⅜ per cent interest.

The plan is simple and constructive.

National banks would be authorized under this program to use such bonds as security for increased currency issues.

The Senate, in adopting the plan, which is a rider to the administration-sponsored home loan bill, is making a frontal attack on the depression.

IT ALSO INAUGURATES another "reflationary" movement.

Reflation, as distinguished from the much-abused "inflation," merely is an attempt to invigorate the entire financial and industrial structure out of its current doldrums.

Until the price level improves, industry will be under the handicap of profitless prices.

While these prices prevail, plants will be prevented from expanding operations; simultaneously, employment will remain at present rate or recede further.

THE PRIME REASON for stagnant trade and industry is the frozen condition of the monetary or financial mechanism.

They also assert the fear of "runs" by depositors, with the possibility of catching the banks unexpectedly shy of ready cash to meet these runs, warrants their continuation of a policy of extreme liquidity.

In either event, the proposed expansion of the currency authorized by the Glass measure fills the need.

THE BILL CONTAINS these highly essential elements:

1.—It is a reflationary measure;

2.—It provides a new source of currency for sorely-pressed banks.

3.—It relieves the tension of depositors.

Opposition to the bill can spring only from a selfish satisfaction with existing conditions, an unwillingness to aggressively tackle the heart-rending deflation, depression and unemployment.

The Senate proposes that the currency privilege be limited to five years—obviously it is recognized solely as an emergency act.

Hearst to Broadcast Address to Nation

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—(INS.)—A topic of national importance will be discussed by William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, in a broadcast over the WEAF-Red network of the National Broadcasting Company, Saturday, July 16, at 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. Pacific coast time (11:30 to 11:45 p. m. Pittsburgh time).

The subject of Mr. Hearst's talk was not revealed today. His broadcast will originate in Los Angeles.

HEIR'S FEAR OF 'PLOT' CITED

Authorities Check On Professional Gunman Angle

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., July 14.—The possibility that a professional gunman killed Smith Reynolds, 20-year-old heir to millions, was being investigated today by authorities.

Young Reynolds during his impetuous courting of Libby Holman, musical comedy singing star, was a well-known figure along Broadway and was known as the Carolina millionaire kid.

The theory was considered that during his visits to New York or Florida he was "spotted" by racketeers who attempted to extort money from him.

Officials conjectured that the plot may have originated a long time ago, even several years ago.

REYNOLDS IN FEAR

There is ample evidence that Smith Reynolds was mortally afraid of something and continually carried a gun to protect himself.

Sometime after the shot was fired which killed Reynolds, International News Service learned, that a thud was heard outside the house as if a person had dropped from a tree or balcony.

A. Clint Wharton, superintendent of the estate, heard the noise. He also thought he heard the sound of a breaking tree branch accompany the thud.

The presence of a possible intruder was indicated by the testimony at the inquest of R. Raymond Kramer, instructor in mathematics to Reynolds, who was at the house on the night of the party which ended in tragedy.

Kramer testified that Reynolds asked him at 10:30 p. m. if he

LEADERS SEEM ANXIOUS TO AID G. O. P.

Anti-Saloon Leaguer's White House Parley May Decide

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—A meeting of vast importance to President Hoover's political future assembled in Washington today.

Professional drys, united as the "National Prohibition Board of Strategy," met to determine whether they should again embrace Mr. Hoover as their presidential candidate despite the guarded resubmission plank in the Republican platform.

BAR ROOSEVELT

Twenty-nine consecutive utterances in favor of retention of the Eighteenth Amendment seemingly had convinced most of the prohibition leaders that President Hoover was their best bet in next November's contest. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's assertion that he stood squarely on the dripping wet Democratic platform had, of course, definitely turned them against the New Yorker.

The amalgamated drys waited with great interest to hear from Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington. The doctor had a 90-minute conference with Walter Newton, Mr. Hoover's political secretary, earlier in the week, and it was understood he had at that time stressed the importance of a strong stand in the President's speech of acceptance in favor of strict law enforcement and hair-line adherence to constitutional provisions for any repeal movement.

OPPOSE CONTRIBUTIONS

The drys would have Mr. Hoover concede the right of the people to resubmission of the question, but insist that it be conducted only through the respective state legislatures and not through special constitutional conventions.

Hope that the executive would not desert their cause was particularly high in the hearts of most of those assembling today because of his last public statement on the question. They recalled that when he submitted the Wickersham report to Congress, the President accompanied it with a message in which he asserted that "a large majority" of the commission "does not favor repeal of the Eighteenth amendment as a method of cure for the inherent abuses of the liquor traffic," and then added:

"I am in accord with this view."

ACTION ON FIRED CITY MEN NEAR

The Civil Service Commission may take some action on the dismissal of the policemen and firemen tomorrow, Attorney Alex P. Lindsay said today. Lindsay has been retained by more than a dozen of the discharged men to press their applications for reinstatement.

Lindsay said when the applications are read tomorrow there is a possibility the Commission may act without hearings. So far 31 applications are before the Commission.

Meanwhile concentrated efforts toward their reinstatement were being made today by a committee of the Central Labor Union. Mayor Kline, Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Safety Director James M. Clark for more than an hour yesterday in the Mayor's office.

John Hoehn, acting secretary of the union, indicated the Mayor had encouraged a compromise plan to reinstate the men.

Fairbanks' Nieces To Try for Films

NEW YORK, July 14.—(INS.)—After a year in Paris, Letitia and Lucille Fairbanks, nieces of Douglas Fairbanks, screen star, planned today to go to Hollywood in hopes of a chance to act in films.

Hoover Appoints Woman for Judge

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(INS.)—Miss M. Pearl McCall, of Greenville, Ky., and Boise, Idaho, was named yesterday by President Hoover for appointment as judge of the district juvenile court.

Miss McCall, for the last 11 years, has been an assistant United States attorney. She formerly had been a clerk in the office of Senator Borah.

DEATH CAUSED BY TOOTHPICK

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 14.—Gilbert Follansbee, 45, died at the Ohio Valley Hospital last night. He was general manager of the Toronto (O.) and Follansbee (W. Va.) mills of the Follansbee Brothers Sheet and Tin Plate Company, of Pittsburgh.

His death resulted from swallowing a toothpick, which lodged in the intestinal tract. A Pittsburgh specialist performed an operation for removal of the toothpick Tuesday night.

Follansbee was born in Pittsburgh, June 1, 1887, the son of William U. Follansbee, and was graduated from high school there in 1907. He began his industrial career in the mills at Follansbee, W. Va., and rose to general manager of the two mills.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Margaret Blythe, East Liverpool; a son, Gilbert, Jr.; his father, a sister and six brothers. He was prominent in business and club circles here and in Pittsburgh.

RELIEF ACTION AGAIN DELAYED

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP.)—Unexpected difficulties in ironing out differences between the House and Senate delayed progress today on the new unemployment relief bill, and congressional conferees recessed without agreement.

The conference, which sponsors of the bill had predicted would produce an agreement within an hour, broke up after three hours and a half, to meet again later today.

Failure of the conferees to reach a compromise on the half dozen differences in the $2,100,000,000 bill as it passed the House and Senate virtually precluded any chance of final action before tomorrow.

The big obstacle proved to be the provision inserted in the House bill by Speaker Garner's deciding vote, for publicity on all loans made hereafter by the Reconstruction Corporation, including advances to banks.

Clash of Orangemen, Free Staters Halted

BELFAST, July 13.—(AP.)—Police in armored cars broke up a two-hour riot between Orangemen and Free Staters today in the neutral territory between the Falls and Shankill districts of Belfast. Numerous heads were cracked.

Officer Loses 1,000-1 Chance; Knife Fails

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—Jack Kennedy, of the Nassau County police, who submitted to the 13 operations to fight off paralysis, which resulted from a bullet wound he received in 1928, has lost his long fight for life.

On April 29, when he went to the operating table for the thirteenth time, doctors warned him he had a 1,000-to-1 chance for recovery.

He took the chance because, he said, he had to think of his wife and little boy, believing the pension of $1,600 he was to receive would not be sufficient for their support. Apparently winning the gamble, he was removed to his home in New Hyde Park and was planning to be out on crutches within a few weeks. Last night he died.

Kennedy was shot from ambush near Woodmere, N. Y., as he approached a car without lights parked in a thicket. The bullet pierced his spine.

GALE BATTLED BY ROOSEVELT

ABOARD YACHT MARCON IN BUZZARD'S BAY, July 14.—(INS.)—In the face of a lashing northeast wind which sent the waves crashing over the bow of his 40-foot yawl Myth II, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was tacking his way through Buzzard's Bay today in the direction of the Cape Cod Canal.

With the spray flying over him, the Democratic presidential candidate clung to the wheel, skillfully guiding the little boat on a zig-zag course across the bay in an effort to make headway against the wind.

It was the roughest day on the water since the Governor and his three sons, James, Franklin, Jr., and John, set sail on their New England cruise four days ago from Port Jefferson, Long Island.

LOAN TO DAWES BANK PROBED

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP.)—An inquiry into every loan that has been made by the Reconstruction Corporation was undertaken today by a special Senate committee with a demand for the relief organization's records.

High up in the committee's program was the design to scan the $80,000,000 that went to the Central Republic Bank and Trust Company, of Chicago, of which Charles G. Dawes, former head of the corporation, is chairman.

That loan has been cited in Congress as the largest to any bank, some voicing suggestions of favoritism.

The request for a detailed report of loans was embodied in a letter from Chairman Couzens, of the special committee, to Eugene Meyer, head of the board.

Van H. Manning, Mine Expert, Dies

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—Van H. Manning, Sr., 70, who developed the American chemical warfare service during the World War, is dead at his home in Queens.

Manning, more recently consulting engineer, was director of the Bureau of Mines during the war. He received much of the credit for the experiments that reduced the price of helium.

GLASS REPEAL MOVE BLOCKED

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(INS.)—The Democratic effort to force action on the Glass proposal to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment met another setback today in the Senate.

Senator Lewis, (Dem.,) of Ill., sought to bring up the Glass resolution but Vice President Curtis ruled that it was not in order.

Glass, an ardent dry, proposed to repeal the amendment and to substitute a clause against the return of the saloon. Under his plan, the states would have complete control over the liquor traffic within their own boundaries subject to the proviso that saloons should not be reestablished.

Money Order Fee Boost Announced

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP.)—An increase in domestic money order fees, effective July 20, was announced today by the Postoffice Department. The new rates are:

One cent to $2.50, 6 cents; $2.51 to $5, 8 cents; $5.01 to $10, 11 cents; $10.01 to $20, 13 cents; $20.01 to $40, 15 cents; $40.01 to $60, 18 cents; $60.01 to $80, 20 cents; $20.01 to $100, 22 cents.

HOOVER'S STAND TO BE CLEAR ON DRY LAW

Slemp Says President Won't Equivocate on Liquor Issue

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Belief that President Hoover in his speech of acceptance will take an unequivocal stand on the prohibition issue was expressed today by C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge, following a conference with the President.

Slemp said he advised the President that there is a rising tide of sentiment in Mr. Hoover's favor in Slemp's home state, Virginia. He said the President could not afford, in view of the critical interests on the subject throughout the country, to take an equivocal stand on the prohibition question.

Slemp, who is a member of the official notifying committee, said the date for the notification ceremonies had not been fixed, but that they would take place before the middle of August, probably about the tenth. They are expected to be held on the south lawn on the White House grounds.

Asked concerning the number of speeches President Hoover will make during the campaign, Slemp said he expected they would number less than a half dozen. He said:

"In my long experience I have never known of a case where a candidate talked his way into the presidency."

He cited the cases of Hughes, Bryan and others dating back over the presidential campaigns of the past quarter century.

200 Subpenas Issued As Grand Jury Turns To 12th Ward

More than 200 subpenas were issued today by the District Attorney's office for residents of the Twelfth Ward to appear before the grand jury Monday and Tuesday, when it resumes investigation into the wholesale purchase of tax receipts. This move will bring back into court echoes of the bitter fight between William A. Means and Mike De Rosa, Jr., for alderman in the Twelfth Ward last fall.

Charges and counter charges were made during the campaign and after the election the matter was brought into court for settlement. The position was finally won by DeRosa through a court order. So far the grand jury has investigated tax receipts issued to residents of the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Wards.

Thursday the grand jury is expected to begin considering the case of Watson Bowser, Kittanning contractor, who had a $200,000 hauling contract with the county. He is said to have been paid 60 cents a ton and to have hired other men to do the work for 12½ cents a ton.

DAUGHTER OF WHELAN DIES

PARIS, July 14.—(AP.)—Despite the efforts of doctors who worked 50 hours to save her life, Mrs. Katherine Whelan Gordon-Ellis, daughter of the late Frederick Whelan, American cigar store executive, died last night in the American Hospital.

The doctors said death resulted from an overdose of a sleeping potion. She was 25.

Police and members of the family investigating the circumstances of her death said she spent the evening before she was taken sick in a Montparnasse Cafe with friends.

PINCHOT SEEKS P. S. C. CONTROL

but it is my inescapable duty unless you save us both by prompt resignation."

In the Senate this morning there was a buzz of comment over the Governor's letter. While no Senator would permit a quotation, it was plainly evident that some of the strongest cogs in the Republican organization machinery hoped Collins would resign and remove from the Governor responsibility of acting on his case.

CONTROL AT STAKE

Should Collins stubbornly hold to his position, the Governor would file charges, afford him an opportunity for answer, then send the case to the Senate Committee on Executive Nominations.

Three of the most influential members of the Senate majority said this morning they had thought for some time that Collins should resign, though at the same time regretting that such action would pave the way for Gov. Pinchot to gain control of the Public Service Commission.

Gov. Pinchot, who since taking office has been making a drive to gain control of the commission, has, on a number of occasions, been on the point of publicly asking Collins to resign.

AINEY CASE WEAKENS

At the present time there are only six Public Service Commissioners, J. W. Brown, whose term expired the first of this month, not having been reappointed. Two of the six commissioners, Frederick Gruenberg and George W. Woodruff, of Philadelphia, are Pinchot selections. A successor to Brown would give the Governor three members of the commission, and, should Collins be forced out, he would be able to pick a fourth for a majority.

The possibility that Pinchot might have the opportunity to name another commissioner through removal action against Chairman William D. B. Ainey, has virtually disappeared. Ainey is the subject of an investigation by a Senate committee of seven and the Attorney General on charges by A. A. Chapman, former secretary to the late Thomas E. Mitten, Philadelphia traction magnate, that Ainey had received $150,000 and other gratuities from Mitten.

It is known, however, that the committee has not so far been impressed by the testimony against Ainey, and the present disposition is to recommend to the Senate the quashing of the charges.

Sugar Heir And Divorcee Plan to Wed

LOIS Q. C. DE RUYTER

Spreckles Scion and Mrs. De Ruyter in Surprise Troth

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—(AP.)—Marriage plans of Adolph B. Spreckles, youthful heir to the Spreckles sugar fortune, and Mrs. Lois Quantain Clarke De Ruyter, of New York City, were the gossip of San Francisco society today.

The couple signed a marriage application here yesterday to the surprise of most of the Spreckles family. Alexander De Bretteville, uncle of the youth and the only member of his family who apparently wasn't surprised, said the couple long had been friends. Spreckles' mother, Mrs. Alma De Bretteville Spreckles, is traveling in Europe.

Neither of the principals was available for statements.

Mrs. De Ruyter, daughter of Lewis Chatham Clarke, New York banker, was divorced from John Louis De Ruyter, member of an old Knickerbocker family, in Reno, five weeks ago.

Both Spreckles and Mrs. De Ruyter gave their ages as 21.

Byrd Leads Fight For Lower Taxes

BOSTON, July 14.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, air-conqueror of both North and South poles, has accepted the chairmanship of the New England organization committee of the National Economy League. The league is dedicated to war on extravagances in government to bring about a reduction in taxes.

Admiral Byrd said that while he would devote his energies and time to perfecting the New England organization of the league, his own aides would push forward preparations for his second venture into the Antarctic.

Doukhobors Plan Mexico Migration

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., July 14.—(AP.)—Rival Doukhobor factions have descended upon this city, where Peter B. Veregin, their leader, is serving an 18-month jail term, and from the series of conferences being held may come a decision for the Doukhobors, a religious sect, to migrate in a body to Mexico.

THINKS CURTIS DEALT WITH KIDNAPERS

Prosecution Aide Sees Clue in Immunity Of Boat

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 14.—(AP.)—Harry L. Stout, special assistant prosecutor, asserted today he was convinced John Hughes Curtis once was in contact with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, because Curtis obtained from the Coast Guard a letter granting immunity from search of his vessel. Stout said:

"I feel the people of Hunterdon County might be interested in knowing that Curtis secured a special document signed by W. A. Benham, commander of the United States Coast Guard, Norfolk Division, which absolutely exempted any vessel on which Curtis was a passenger from being searched."

Lloyd Fisher, counsel for Curtis, asked for comment, said he knew of the existence of the letter and that it had been issued to give Col. Charles A. Lindbergh the protection he had requested in all transactions. He said Curtis had informed him he had a similar letter from Lindbergh asking that police desiring to help the case not interfere with or attempt to search Curtis' vessel.

Stout said the document was found in the possession of Curtis while at Hopewell during the investigation which resulted in his sentence of a year in prison. Stout said:

"We contend Curtis was in contact with the right people and we do not believe he would have desired any boat he was sailing on immune from search by Coast Guard officers unless he was on the right track. Knowing this, after the baby's body was found he purposely led state police on the wild goose chase to Cape May and other places, and this is the crime of which the state proved him guilty."

IDENTIFY BOY THEFT SUSPECT

Jack Frazer, 18, who told Bellevue police he was from Jackson, Miss., was identified as James Baker, of 1308 Reddour street, North Side, and was held for court on four charges of robbery at a hearing before Squire Elmer T. Greiner, of Bellevue, last night.

Baker was captured on a Woods Run street car early yesterday after he had been chased through Bellevue by Kirke P. Hargar, of 153 Lincoln avenue, whose home he was declared to have been ransacking when he was surprised by Mrs. Hargar. Baker was implicated in three Squirrel Hill robberies in addition to the Bellevue charge.

Believes Truck Fire Victim His Brother

Richard Doubt, of 312 Sefler street, McKees Rocks, went late yesterday to Newport, Pa., to view the body of C. H. Doubt, burned to death there early yesterday when a truck upset and caught fire. Richard Doubt believed the victim to be his brother.

MOCOW ANNOUNCES that Russia has sowed one million fewer acres of wheat than was planned. However, on July 1, more than 241,000,000 acres had been sown, and that is not doing badly. Such a crop means 400,000 square miles of wheat, equal to a strip fifteen miles wide from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean.

A PLAGUE of typhus fever in Chile that has killed seventy affords an opportunity to try the new typhus serum, made by grinding up fleas that have bitten rats infected with typhus, and injecting the flea dust into living guinea pigs.

The serum, from a mild form of typhus, teaches the human white blood cells how to fight the most deadly typhus germs when they appear. Wonderful is science.

A PARIS dispatch to Cyrus H. K. Curtis' papers shows that France thus far has not fared so badly in dealings with "Uncle Shylock." Uncle Sam left, in France, four hundred million dollars worth of American war stock, turned over to the French government as part of the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement.

The French have sold for cash part of the stuff left in France by Uncle Sam for two hundred and seventy million dollars, seventy millions more than France has repaid to the United States, and enough to continue paying French installments for the next two years.

He may be a "Shylock," but Uncle Sam is not an efficient Shylock.

PRIEST TO QUIT ROME ON PLEA OF JOBLESS

Presence Termed Vital To Direct Plans for Party Convention

International News Service.

ROME, July 14.—Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, denied here today that he was attempting to start Fascism in the United States. He said:

"I am not trying to start Fascism in America. I am aiming at a government of Puritan, Quaker and Maryland fathers.

"The masses want a new order other than Communism. I am convinced there are too many absolute governments in this world while America is suffering from a money aristocracy."

Father Cox said he was leaving without interviewing Premier Benito Mussolini.

He will leave for home on Saturday after presenting the pilgrims to Pope Pius tomorrow, then fly to Munich and Paris and sail on the steamer Majestic from Cherbourg next Wednesday.

PRIEST NEEDED HERE

The sudden departure of Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, for Pittsburgh is due to a cablegram sent yesterday by Attorney Austin Staley, who has been directing the activities of the Jobless-Liberty party while the priest is away.

Staley said the priest's presence is needed to direct the plans for the convention, which is to be held August 17 and 18 at the Creeve Coeur Lake Speedway, Clayton, Mo., just outside St. Louis.

Father Cox tomorrow will present to Pope Pius the pilgrims whom he took to the Dublin Eucharistic Congress and on to Rome. The party will continue on its tour as originally planned, with one of Father Cox's aides in charge.

GREETING PLANNED

Staley today announced Father Cox, on arrival in New York, would be greeted by a unit of the Blue Shirt army, as a guard of honor, and by many other followers.

While St. Louis officials did not refuse permission for the Jobless convention there, a letter to Attorney Staley from City Council informed him his plan to meet in Forest Park in the city did not meet with Council's approval. The letter suggested the convention be held elsewhere.

Special trains, buses and automobile caravans will carry the delegates to the convention. Pittsburgh's delegation will leave August 14.

The speedway has a large grandstand, 114 acres, amplifiers and wire rooms. Staley announced the site would be sufficient to care for the 1,000,000 men and women expected to attend.

MANY CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

CONCEPCION, Chile, July 14.—(INS.)—While sobbing soldiers and sailors fought back frenzied mothers, firemen searched the ruins of the Esmeralda Theater at the Talcahuano naval base today. Fire destroyed the building last night when 300 children were attending a special performance and many were killed.

Twenty bodies have been recovered, but a number of others are unaccounted for and believed buried beneath the ruins.

first-aid attention. Only two, however, were reported seriously hurt. Both were firemen.

Every piece of fire apparatus in Brooklyn was called out. Darkness was falling before the fire was under control. It was still smouldering today.

It was the biggest fire Coney Island ever had; and it was a great free show for the 150,000 men, women and children who watched it. Even the Dreamland fire of 1911, when property damage in the millions resulted, could not compare with yesterday's fire.

No estimate of the personal losses suffered by bathers could be made. It ran into the tens of thousands. Adding to their loss was their predicament of being many miles from home with only a bathing suit and no funds for transportation. Subway and street car companies provided free transportation home to those in bathing suits. Police also commandeered buses in the emergency.

During it all, with ambulances forcing their way with difficulty through packed streets, and with thousands of men and women running about in bewildered stampede before the roar of fire-fighting equipment, Coney Island went on with its play.

The lowly nickel became the coin of the hour. The thousands who had lost their clothing and money crowded about the police station. Nearly all of them wanted a nickel—a nickel to telephone, a nickel to get home on. At first the police met these requests from their pockets. As the need for nickels increased, this means of meeting the demand became out of the question. It was then the police arranged for free transportation home for those without funds.

During the hours when the fire burned most fiercely hundreds of families became separated, and children were lost.

At Silver's baths, one of the places destroyed, several women were in the steam room. Most of them ran into the street with towels wrapped about them. Persons living nearby supplied them with clothing.

Luna Park and Steeplechase Park, best known of the Coney Island amusement places, were untouched by the fire.

BROADCAST FIRE FROM BLIMP

NEW YORK, July 14.—(Universal.)—A radio description of the fire that wiped out a large section of Coney Island was broadcast from the blimp Resolute by Ted Husing and relayed through station WINS, the Hearst Newspapers' raido voice in New York.

Immediately upon word that the fire was reaching disastrous proportions, the Columbia Broadcasting System chartered the blimp and arranged that Husing's description should be broadcast through WINS, since WABC, Columbia's New York station, was tied up with other programs.

It was the first time in the history of broadcasting that the spontaneous information relayed by radio was drawn simultaneously from a blimp in the air, from a moving automobile and from a Coast Guard cutter in service.

Medical Expert Sees Contradiction in Time Element

International News Service.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., July 14.—Although the concurrent grand jury adjourned without considering the Reynolds murder mystery, Sheriff Transou Scott today had his investigation well under way and was fairly confident of progress. A new grand jury assembles on July 25.

One of the startling developments in the case today was the declaration of a medical expert that the pool of blood found on the floor where the head of Smith Reynolds hung over the bed, could not have formed in less than 15 minutes' time.

This contradicted the time element given by Ab Walker, friend of Reynolds and formerly held as a material witness with Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds in connection with the inquest.

BOUNDED UPSTAIRS

Walker testified that he bounded upstairs after the shot was fired at 1 a. m., and within 10 minutes arrived at the Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem with Reynolds.

Mrs. Reynolds and Blanche Yurka, actress friend of the wife, accompanied Reynolds as well.

The testimony of W. E. Fulcher, the night watchman, given at a private hearing, also stood against Walker's declaration.

Fulcher testified that when he heard the gun fired it could not have been more than 15 or 20 minutes after 12:30 a. m. He said:

"It couldn't have been over 15 or 20 minutes after 12:30, because I walked back to the car and sat down and finished eating a sandwich."

Q.—"And you didn't hear a scream at all?"

A.—"No, sir, I didn't hear anything."

Q.—"If a woman had screamed, could you have heard it?"

A.—"I sure could."

WALKER'S CLAIM

Walker had previously testified that he had responded to a scream from Mrs. Reynolds upstairs.

It was learned that a large part of the private testimony dealt with questions and answers as to the phenomenon of why there were no traces of blood on the rugs, the staircase, the tile flooring on the front porch or the white gravel in the pathway—the path over which the body was carried down from the sleeping porch.

There was blood found on the bed, the floor and a chaise longue located between the bed and the window in the Reynolds bedroom adjoining the porch.

Superintendent of the estate A. Clint Wharton said:

"I examined all the way from the sleeping porch down the hallway to the center stairway, across the reception room and across the porch. I looked very carefully, mostly on my hands and knees. I didn't find any traces of blood."

When Miss Yurka was examined she was asked:

"Can you account for the fact that there was absolutely no blood from this doorway to the car, anywhere along the route they took in carrying the body of Mr. Reynolds?"

A. "I couldn't account for it but I would say in looking back I am of the impression that a good deal of blood must have been absorbed. Mrs. Reynolds' garment was very heavily blood-stained."

Q. "I understood she had hold of his feet?"

A. "It was very heavily blood-stained, the garment was, as I recall."

"She couldn't have gotten blood on her from carrying him by the feet?"

A. "No, I shouldn't think so."

Wife of Bendix To Seek Divorce

CHICAGO, July 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Vincent Bendix, wife of the automobile and airplane equipment manufacturer, today said she would file suit for divorce. Her statement, confirming rumors current in society circles, indicated the action charging desertion would be uncontested. She added that a financial settlement had been agreed upon and would be included in the terms of the decree.

$2,600 in Shoe Lost in Burning Of Bathhouse

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—Max Sanger, 55, of Newark, N. J., would trust none but himself with his life savings of $2,600. He took it along to the Coney Island Beach yesterday, hid it in his shoe and left it in a bathhouse.

LIBBY RESTING, SEEKS TO FORGET

Widow of Reynolds In Retirement at Cincinnati

International News Service.

CINCINNATI, O., July 14.—Haunted by the memories of the violent death of her young husband, Smith Reynolds, 20-year-old heir to the Reynolds tobacco fortune, Libby Holman remained in seclusion today at the Wyoming village home of her sister, Mrs. Myron Kahn.

Doors of the Kahn home were closed, and the shades were drawn. Inquisitors at the Kahn home were sent away with the reply that "members of the family have no statement to make and do not care to speak to anyone."

Details of the divorce proceedings, which took place before a referee, were withheld. The final decree will be issued later this month.

DEATH IN CRASH MARS ROMANCE

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—(INS.)—A Hollywood-Agua Caliente romance between James Crofton, millionaire president of the Agua Caliente Corporation, and Mona Rico, beautiful Mexican film star, was revealed today in investigation of the fatal crash of Carl W. Gilpin's airplane near Mexico City.

Gilpin, president of Gilpin Airlines here, was killed and his four passengers, including Miss Rico and Crofton, were injured.

Mrs. Katherine Gilpin, of Los Angeles, widow of the airline official, revealed that Crofton and Miss Rico had been married recently and were on a honeymoon flight to Mexico City when the crash occurred.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that caused the showery condition over this section is now centered to the Gulf. A low in the Northwest, in pressure covers the country from Hudson Bay southward over the Ohio Valley states to the Gulf. A low in the Northwest, in Saskatchewan is of greater intensity than usual for the season, the lowest pressure reported, 29.46 inches, at Swift Current, extends southward over the Rocky Mountains. It is causing cloudiness over that section, and a general showery condition. The weather is warm over the greater portion of the country. Temperature of 90 degrees or higher occurred yesterday afternoon over the entire country south of the Great Lakes, and from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Coast.

River Conditions.

GUNMAN THEORY IN REYNOLDS CASE PROBED

Officials Hint Gang May Have Killed Tobacco Heir

had not heard a strange automobile near the house. Reynolds said that a machine had driven up in front of the north side of the house and stopped.

Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds, widow of the dead boy, testified that her young husband had always been afraid of kidnaping.

HEARD FOOTSTEPS

She said that "several times we heard footsteps outside the house."

The sleeping porch on which Reynolds was found opens on a balcony only about 15 feet above the ground. There is a cedar tree opposite the balcony.

Officials pointed out that a marauder could have reached the balcony from the tree, committed the crime, and hidden until the coast was clear. The mythical intruder might have had his escape temporarily cut off due to the unscheduled fact that W. E. Fulcher, night watchman, was eating a sandwich in his automobile near the house when the shot was fired.

Fulcher did not pay any attention to the shot, thinking it was his master or the latter's friends shooting a gun out the window as they had done many times before at gay parties.

The necessity of an inside connection for the crime under this theory was discussed by authorities.

His first trip north preceded a trip to Jacksonville with Mrs. Reynolds. He stayed four days in New York. He returned to his estate at Reynolda from Jacksonville with a new plane.

Following that he went again alone to New York, leaving on a Sunday and returning the following Wednesday.

LABOR OPPOSES DE VALERA

DUBLIN, July 14.—(AP.)—It was reported in political circles here today that President Eamon de Valera is threatened with the loss of the support of the Free State Labor party, upon which he has depended for his majority in the Dail Eirann, as a result of his proposal to levy a retalitory tariff tax on British imports into the Free State.

The possibility that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, fresh from Lausanne, might enter the Anglo-Irish Free State controversy as a peacemaker was the talk in Dublin today.

TRAPPED POOR DIE IN FLOOD

NICE, France, July 14.—(INS.)—Trapped by a sudden flood in the dry bed of the River Paillon today, many men, women and children were swept to their death. According to police, 40 to 50 persons were drowned.

The bed of the Paillon, which traverses Nice, has long been dry and the city authorities recently roofed it over, using the roof as a roadway.

Since that time scores of unemployed and tramps, including many entire families have made a practice of sleeping in the space underneath the roadway.

Early today a storm in the mountains about Nice sent water rushing in a 15-foot wall down the riverbed, overwhelming men, women and children as they slept. Only two women were rescued.

DEBT CUT FOES GAIN STRENGTH IN CONGRESS

8 More Lawmakers Oppose Cancellation, None Advocate It

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The Universal Service poll of Congress on the question of cancellation of the war debts today reached a total of 81 Senators and 275 Representatives opposed, without a single advocate of cancellation in either House.

Among the eight new replies to the question, "do you favor cancellation of the war debts," received by wire from absent members, was one from Senator Neely (Dem.), of West Virginia, saying:

"I oppose cancellation of war debts."

Representative H. H. Peavey (Rep.), of Wisconsin, telegraphed:

"The nations of Europe have given their solemn word to repay their war loans. Neither President Hoover nor any other international spokesman should be permitted to encourage these governments to repudiate their obligations."

INVOLVED PROBLEM

Representative Parker Corning (Dem.), of New York, wired:

"Do not favor cancellation of war debts in total. Feel, however, that matter is extremely involved and that in the end we will undoubtedly consent to a moderate scale-down probably involving scaling down on war establishments in other countries. Impossible to discuss this matter by wire, but in principle do not favor cancellation."

Representative J. O. Fernandez (Dem.), of Louisiana, wired:

"I am opposed to cancellation of war debts as my remarks in the record at the time of the passage of the moratorium would indicate."

Representative Harry C. Canfield (Dem.), of Indiana, stated:

Representative Harry A. Estep (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, said:

"Congress, by legislative action, has established a policy of opposition to any cancellation or further reduction of the European debt. I am in entire accord with that policy."

Representative John M. Evans (Dem.), of Montana:

RESULTS OF POLL

U. S. PLANS NEW ARMS PROJECT

GENEVA, July 14.—(INS.)—The United States will present a new disarmament proposal in the event the Hoover plan for a one-third cut in arms is not accepted in principle by the disarmament conference.

Ambassador Hugh Gibson and Hugh Wilson, leaders of the American arms delegation, made no effort to hide this fact today as they emerged from an hour's conference with Arthur Henderson, president of the parley.

They said they were hopeful that eventually the conference would pass a resolution "embodying the major principles of the Hoover plan." However, they said, if the arms delegates failed to agree upon a suitable text, the United States would offer a new plan.

Mattern, Griffin Fly Back to Berlin

BERLIN, July 14.—(INS.)—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, American fliers forced down in Russia on an attempted round-the-world flight, arrived here today en route home. The airmen made the trip from Moscow by plane.

Mattern and Griffin told reporters they would again make an effort to fly around the world.

PACT TO HINDER DEBT PARLEYS

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(INS.)—The Franco-British accord and the "Gentlemen's Agreement" signed at the Lausanne conference will add enormously to the difficulties of this country in any negotiations which may take place with individual European nations for reduction of their respective debts.

Administration officials reluctantly came to this point of view today after reading the texts of the two documents which were given to the press in London and Paris. Any doubt which may have lingered in the minds of officials here that the two agreements were aimed at presenting a solid European front to the United States on the matter of debts, was dispelled by the texts.

The understanding reached by European leaders to work in close co-operation among themselves has not changed this government's determination not to deal with its European creditors en masse, it was pointed out. The United States adheres to its position that it will discuss debt adjustment with each creditor country individually and singly if and when that country makes formal request for such discussion.

This confirms earlier reports that ratification of the treaty of Lausanne depended upon a settlement between the United States and its debtors of Europe.

Simultaneously the foreign office made public a letter from Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, to N. Germain-Martin, French finance minister, further revealing the close unity with which France and Britain worked regarding the reparations settlement.

Dated July 8, 1932, at Lausanne, the day the reparations agreement was reached and the day before the treaty was signed, the letter said Britain would have "been very pleased" to cancel France's war debt to her "in a joint plan for a general cancellation of debts and reparations."

Chamberlain went on to say that if the Lausanne treaty was not ratified, "the British and French would have to examine the situation together."

FACE UNITED EUROPE

America must deal with a united Europe on the issue of war debts, according to the construction placed in official circles today on the restored entente cordiale which has again linked French and British interests.

It was learned today that the agreement perfecting the entente cordiale was pushed through and published with unusual rapidity for a diplomatic document of such importance. This was due to the criticism of the "gentlemen's agreement" in the United States.

The International News Service is able to state on high authority that Premier Herriot did not wait to get the French translation of the document, but translated it from the English in the Chamber of Deputies and then for the newspapermen.

HASTE EXPLAINED

The newspaper Le Journal today said:

"The haste was due to a desire to show the United States the 'gentlemen's agreement' was not a revolver pointed at its head.

"It was hurriedly put out to show the United States there is no entente among a certain number of the powers to force liquidation of the war debts."

It is considered unlikely in French government circles that there will be any immediate steps toward war debt reduction: First, on account of the American attitude toward the "gentlemen's agreement;" second, the fear that war debts may become an American political issue; third, there is no immediate need for haste, as payments on the war debts are not now due.

LONDON DENIES PACT IS BLOW AT AMERICA

Official Circles in Britain Stirred by Herriot Speech

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

LONDON, July 14. — The British government this afternoon officially denied that the new Anglo-French entente, disclosed yesterday, represented an attempt by France and Great Britain to present a united front against the United States in the matter of war debt settlement.

A government statement, evidently inspired by Premier Edouard Herriot's speech in the French Chamber of Deputies yesterday, said:

"In connection with the report which has been put in circulation as to the interpretation of the Anglo-French declaration to which other governments have been invited to adhere, there is no truth in the statement that it is applicable to the question of British debts to the United States."

DENY FRENCH STAND

This statement was issued from No. 10 Downing street, the residence of Premier MacDonald, a few hours after a government spokesman had indicated displeasure at Premier Herriot's "misinterpretation" of the meaning of the Anglo-French agreement in his speech before a chamber committee. The statement said:

"The use in the declaration of the words 'European regime' expressly excludes from its purview any questions affecting non-European countries.

"On the whole question the Prime Minister explained the government's position authoritatively in his speech in the House of Commons Tuesday evening, when he said: 'In view of the grievous results likely to follow upon any reparations here or in America that at Lausanne Europe has combined to present something in the nature of an ultimatum to the United States, I want to make it perfectly clear that all that the Lausanne conference did was to straighten out the internal difficulties of Europe which in all conscience were many and difficult and agreed to proposals which the nations there represented believed essential and possible.'"

'MISUNDERSTANDING'

Simultaneously the Treasury issued a statement with reference to the speech made in the House of Commons Monday by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer. This statement said:

"A misunderstanding has arisen regarding Mr. Chamberlain's reference in his speech in the House of Commons Monday to the conversations with representatives of the United States (at the Lausanne reparations conference).

"He did not suggest and of course had no intention of suggesting that representatives of the United States had approved either tacitly or explicitly what was done at Lausanne.

"The proceedings there were throughout on the basis that the right course was to seek a European solution of the reparations question without involving the United States in the discussion."

The two statements were issued, it was frankly admitted, in an effort to offset the unfavorable reacation reports of Premier Herriot's speech had had in the United States and to convince American public that the revived Anglo-French entente cordiale was not aimed at the United States.

LONDON CONVINCED

Herriot's address was made before the Finance Committee of the French chamber. No official report of his remarks were available but press versions circulated here made it appear that France and Great Britain had agreed to act jointly in the matter of paying remaining debt instalments the United States.

It was apparent this forenoon that the foreign office was greatly concerned over the possible effect of the Paris dispatches in the United States.

Man Held for Court On Assault Charge

G. L. Cholker, of 348 Amber street, was held for court on charges of aggravated assault and battery and violation of the Snyder act at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, last night.

Cholker was accused by H. C. Dean, of Fairmount avenue, of hitting him on the jaw when he went to the Cholker home July 3. Dean testified he had bought liquor there. Cholker denied selling liquor to Dean. He was released on $1,500 bail.

Schwab Trade School Not to Be Closed

The Homestead School Board last night rescinded its former action to close the Schwab Industrial School because of lack of funds, and voted to open the building next fall along with the other public schools. Presented to the borough 25 years ago by Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate, the school employs 14 teachers and gives instruction in trade crafts to hundreds of youths of Homestead and vicinity.

Uruguayans Hail Argentina Break

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, July 14.—(INS.)—Severance of diplomatic relations with the Argentine was popularly acclaimed here today, while government officials declared themselves as "ready for eventualities," though they decried the probability of war between Uruguay and Argentina.

The feeling between the countries has never been excessively friendly and relations have been growing worse steadily since the political upset in the Argentine in 1930.

Jeannette Flying East to Ill Sister

HOLLYWOOD, July 14.—(AP.)—Jeanette MacDonald, film actress, left by plane at 4 yesterday for Philadelphia, on receiving word that her sister, Elsie MacDonald, 35, a widow, is seriously ill of peritonitis in a hospital there.

Miss MacDonald was en route to San Francisco to be queen of a Bastile Day celebration when she was intercepted at Santa Barbara with word of her sister's condition. She returned here and boarded an American Airways plane.

Maude Adams Fights Suit of Director

NEW YORK, July 14.—(INS.)—Maude Adams, noted actress, and five others, including Mitchell Erlanger, theatrical magnate, named in a $200,000 damage suit brought by John D. Williams, stage director, are to ask the Supreme Court Monday to vacate an order for their examination before trial.

Williams charged he rendered services to Miss Adams prior to her return to the stage last year for which he never was compensated.

Washington Bank Closes; Funds Short

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(INS.)—The Bank of Brightwood did not open its doors for business today, and so became the first financial institution of the District of Columbia to close during the present crisis. National bank examiners last night reported a shortage in the bank's accounts, and the board of directors voted to suspend operations and place the institution in charge of the Comptroller of Currency.

FOREMAN SEEKS NEW EVIDENCE IN 'TORTURE'

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 14.—Launching an independent inquiry into prison camp conditions in Duval County, Al F. Gorman, foreman of the grand jury which indicted two guards on a first degree murder charge for the alleged "torture death" of Arthur Maillefert, today paid a surprise visit to the Railford state prison farm.

Gorman planned to interrogate some of the 18 guards and 79 prisoners transferred to the farm from the Sunbeam prison camp, where Maillefert died of strangulation in a sweatbox. The boy was choked by a chain, which two guards placed around his neck and over a rafter, so he "could not escape." Gorman said:

"I want to talk to some of the prisoners, who were in the Sunbeam camp with young Maillefert. I am not at all satisfied with the stories given us by some of the prisoners."

Twelve of the Sunbeam prisoners testified at a habeas corpus proceeding, brought by the two guards—Capt. George W. Courson and Solomon M. Higginbotham—when they sought release on bail after being indicted for the alleged murder of Maillefert. Curiously enough, six of the prisoners said Maillefert had been mistreated—the other six testifying that Courson had been "very good" to the youth.

Gorman wanted to question other prisoners, to determine whether any influence had been brought to bear upon those who approved the guards' treatment of the tortured boy.

Gorman announced incidentally that the grand jury had dispatched a letter to Nathan Mayo, State Commissioner of Agriculture, who has charge of all prison camps, demanding the dismissal of Capt. John F. Baker, the regular commandant at the Sunbeam camp. Gorman said the letter had been written in line with the grand jury's recommendation for Baker's dismissal. He said the text of the letter would have to be made public by Commissioner Mayo.

Prison Expert Lauds System at Pen Here

Written exclusively for the Sun-Telegraph by William B. Cox, of the National Society of Penal Information, New York, world's authority on prisons who recently made a survey and personal inspection of 200 prisons, many in southern states and in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

By WILLIAM B. COX

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 14.—The Florida torture case is a natural result of an antiquated prison system which has as a major objective punishment instead of reformation of the wrongdoer. In general housing and sanitation of Florida prison camps and also the type of officials, fall far below the standard set in Alabama and Virginia, two other southern states operating similar camps.

County-operated camps are cruder and more-unintelligently managed than state camps. Until Florida adopts a more enlightened policy and selects higher-type personnel adequately paid for services, such periodic scandals will be inevitable. The amount of brutality practiced in these camps cannot be accurately estimated, but its frequent occurrence is certain.

Usually inmates are unwilling to reveal actual conditions for fear of reprisals. That such barbaric practices should not be countenanced in this enlightened age is without question. Penologists have agreed that brutalizing tactics leave their mark long on officials as well as convicts. Bound to outrage any sense of decency, to all right-minded people such offense by representatives of law are deeper wrongs against society than crimes committed by those sentenced by courts to penal servitude in road gangs.

Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio have been gradually adopting modern theories of dealing with offenders and relegating harsh, stupid punishments to scrap heap. However, there are still some punishments at the Eastern State Penitentiary, Philadelphia, and Ohio Penitentiary, Columbus, that should not be tolerated. Modern penology demands scientific and educational measures and employment of socially-minded personnel.

However, there are punishments used in some institutions just as stupid and unquestionably productive of mental torture nearly, if not equally vicious, in effect on prisoner.

Despite deplorable physical conditions at Western Penitentiary, Pittsburgh, their administrative policies are of exceedingly high order and compare favorably with better institutions of the country.

The Pittsburgh institution clearly demonstrates what can be accomplished by an intelligent socially-minded warden who recognizes his first duty is protection of society through sending forth his charges upon release better than they entered.

Warship Bulldog Made Knight by King George

WEYMOUTH, England, July 14.—(INS.)—Emulating King James I, who knighted a loin of beef at Houghton Towers 300 years ago, giving "sirloin" the name by which it has been known ever since, King George has bestowed a knighthood on a dog.

C. E.'S TO HEAR RODEHEAVER

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, July 14.—Homer Rodeheaver, world famous evangelist and song leader, will lead two sessions tonight of the meeting of the Pennsylvania State Christian Endeavor Society, holding its fifteenth biennial conference here. He will officiate at the praise service at 7:30 in the Temple of Music and will also lead the musical program an hour later. Reuel B. Wolford, of Wilkinsburg, newly elected president of the Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor, will preside at the evening session.

Today's conference was under the direction of the Rev. H. E. Wagner, who was to preside in the Temple of Music. The afternoon was to be free for recreation and at night Wolford was to have charge of his first meeting.

More than 2,500 young people are here attending the sessions, which will last all week. Yesterday new officers were installed. Wolford, active in Christian Endeavor affairs, has received the unanimous support of every Endeavorer present.

Innkeeper Slays Chef in Robbery

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., July 14.—(AP.)—Resisting an attempt to rob him, Dr. Lon J. Moxon, 55, operator of Vagabond Inn, 20 miles south of here, shot and killed Charles Mann, 38, his chef, wounded the latter's wife and fired a shot at a Negro porter shortly after last midnight.

Dr. Moxon was badly beaten in the melee, but did not require hospital treatment.

Gas Station Bandits Kidnap Attendant

After taking $20 from the cash register in the Standard Oil Company's service station, Hamilton avenue and Putnam street, three armed bandits forced E. W. Brown, of 311 Hay street, Wilkinsburg, the attendant, into their automobile and sped away. In Highland Park the bandit trio released Brown, warning him against an outcry.

Widow Sole Legatee Of Gillette Estate

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—(AP.)—The widow of King C. Gillette is named as sole legatee of the razor manufacturer in his will, filed with the probate court here.

The only description of the property disposed of in the will is that it consists of real estate, stocks and bonds, yielding "a very uncertain income, but probably in excess of $10,000 a year."

State Opens First Child Health Center

CHARLEROI, Pa., July 14.—The first Child Health Center at Denbo is operating today. The opening witnessed the examination of 76 children under 3. Miss Anna M. King, of Charleroi, was in charge of the preparatory work, assisted by three physicians, 10 nurses and a local committee of 10 women.

Molla Mallory Loses Job as Store Girl

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—Molla Mallory, former tennis champion of the United States, is out of a job. She sold sports dresses in a department store for six weeks, but was let out Saturday, she disclosed. In the fall, however, she hopes to start a sports store "on a shoe string."

Havana Policeman Hangs Self in Cell

HAVANA, July 14.—(AP.)—Felix Del Cristo, a motorcycle policeman, who was arrested after he failed to follow an automobile whose occupants shot and killed Capt. Miguel Calvo and two other policemen, Saturday, was found hanging dead in his cell at Atares Castle yesterday.

He was stationed at Gen. Machado monument on the Malecon (waterfront drive), a short distance from the scene of the assassination, when the automobile roared by.

Cement Plant Calls 150 Back to Work

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 14.—Resumption of the Lehigh Portland Cement plant this morning recalled 150 former employes to work. Eight-hour shifts are scheduled. Steady operation until late fall is assured.

JOSEPH HORNE CO

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Query

The gauze of laughter hides our ugly scars,
The blare of music drowns our discontent;
No longer do we reach to pluck the stars,
For wisdom comes when ecstasy is spent;
Now we have learned as other lovers do,
That hands can touch nor stir the listless blood,
That glamour lives a fleeting month or two,
And love is always fairest in the bud.

Yes, granted this, but still we sadly cling
To second-best, and hope perhaps to find
Some potion that will make the senses sing
As once they did when gods were overkind;

—Kid Kazanova.

Thrust

They were unfolding tales about the late Acton Davies, once a powerful critic in New York. He had rapped an actress in a review—and her titled husband (who never worked a day in his life) finally cornered the reviewer and they swapped blows.

The next day the critic's editor spoke of it.

"I hear," said the editor, "that he almost bit your nose off."

"Yes," was the sarcastic reply, "he's been living off other people for years!"

In Fewer Words

And I. Hoffman says that the Americans talk what they think is English—and what they drink is Scotch.

Eavesdropped

An acrobat, standing in front of the Palace Theater (now in its final week with its present policy) was heard to groan:

"So she flop, eh? Now she know how it feels!"

Rebuttal

"Dear Walter," telegraphs Sidney Blackmer, the actor, "just returned to town and saw Woollcott's gag about reviving 'Scaramouche' if they could revive Sidney Blackmer. Okay Winchell—I do need reviving a lot—but so do a lot of us after seeing Woollcott act!"

Times Are Like That

Theater audiences are tougher to please than ever along Broadway—so when a theater party of four came late at one of the surviving flops last night—the ticket-taker said:

"I'm sorry—but I can't let you in yet."

"And why not?" barked the host of the group.

"It's the middle of the first act," was the mournful retort, "and if I open this door—half the audience might rush out!"

Observation

Another reason why you no longer hear critics refer to the drama as The Sock and Buskin is that there is too much buskin and not enough sock.

Heheheh

When Marian Marsh of the screen was in New York with her mother their hotel room was crowded with newspaper interviewers and cameramen. Which inspired one of them to remark:

"This room is so crowded—we should have taken these pictures in Madison Square Garden!"

Lesson in Etiquette

One of the country's foremost comedians was recently asked to join a party at the mansion of a movie magnate on the coast. After the dinner was thoroughly enjoyed by all, the host gathered his friends on the lawn and then said:

"I think this would be a fine time for some jokes."

Then turning to the star, he added:

"Please amuse us."

The star obliged and unfolded several stories, which convulsed his listeners. The following day the actor sent his host a bill for $2,500.

The amazed host got on the phone.

"What's the idea of sending me a bill?" he groaned, "you were my guest!"

"If I were your guest," was the snapper, "you would have also invited my wife!"

It Happened!

Lou Holtz says it is a fact. That Chaliapin, who rates $5,000 every time he sings, was playing in a nearby town some time ago, and after the performance he went to one of those Minsky type burlesks, which gave a midnight show.

Chaliapin, it appears, relaxed and joined in the spirit of the thing. However, when the soubrette ankled out and sang "Margie" in the lusty manner and then called upon the audience to join in the chorus Caliapin let out his robust tones until the patron in front turned around and said:

"Hey, you! Shut up—paid to hear her—not you, you big bum!"

'Camille' Horrified People When Dumas Wrote It Once Upon a Time

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Way out West, in the Rocky Mountains, they are having a revival of "Camille" this week. It will be a brilliant revival, with a brilliant cast, headed by Lillian Gish, and the scenery has been designed by Robert Edmond Jones. People may wonder why—why they should revive "Camille" and why they should revive it way out in Central City, Colorado.

The Dictionary of Dates, which is rather out of date, would tell that the drama of "Camille" and the western gold rush came very close together. Dumas fils, son of Alexander the Great, who wrote "The Three Musketeers," and "The Count of Monte Cristo," had written a novel in 1848, called "The Lady With the Camellias." Four years later he turned it into a play with the same title.

Mr. Seibel

When this play was first produced in Paris, Charles Fechter, a famous actor who visited Pittsburgh 20 years after, played the hero Armand. The heroine, Marguerite Gautier, was played by Mme. Doche—and since then has been played by every emotional actress that could get the chance. Duse used it for her American debut—Bernhardt played it oftener than anything else in her repertoire.

MARGUERITE IN AMERICA

The first American Marguerite, I think, was Matilda Heron. But in America the translator and adapter of the drama gave it the odd title of "Camille," which has stuck to it. If you talk to people about "The Lady With the Camellias," they don't know what you're talking about. The play got its title because the heroine was never seen out without a bunch of those flowers.

Another curious thing about this drama is its history as an opera. It is Verdi's "Traviata," first sung a year after the play made a big hit. "Traviata" is Italian, and means "the lost woman," and the opera was certainly lost, being a miserable failure. But when it was sung again later, just like "Carmen," also a failure at first, it became one of the most popular of all Verdi's, next to "Il Trovatore." Every great prima donna wants to sing Violetta, just as every great actress wants to play Marguerite.

CAMILLE AND HER CAT

We have had many famous Marguerites. Perhaps the best of all was Clara Morris.

Clara Morris used to delight in telling of her adventure with a cat in "Camille." It happened in Baltimore. Camille was dying in the last act. Suddenly she saw an alley cat coming toward her. Evidently this stranger had strayed in from the street and wondered what was going on here. The audience was tittering.

Happily Puss came, Camille picked her up, called her servant, Nanine, and asked her to take her pet downstairs. The situation was saved.

Next day people were found who insisted that the cat belonged in the play, and that they had never seen this cat scene done so well.

"Camille" has been played by Mrs. Fiske, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Nance O'Neil and many others. Mary Hall did it very well some years ago with the Davis Stock Company.

CAMILLE OUT WEST

This drama, which sentimentalizes over a "lost woman," using Verdi's phrase, made a great hit with the western miners, who would have acquitted any blonde for shooting any man, on the very sound theory that "if a lady shoots a gentleman, she must have a good reason for it."

And at that time they had some very good theaters in those mining camps. Actors like Booth and Jefferson played there. One of the most renowned of those theaters was the one at Central City, mentioned in Eugene Field's poem, "Modjesky as Cameel," which may explain why they are now reviving this play at Central City. Eva Le Gallienne also plans to revive it next season, with Joseph Schildkraut as Armand.

"Camille" is a bit old-fashioned nowadays. When Dumas wrote it, Mme. Farguell declined to act such a part, and it fell to Mme. Doche. Doche was also averse.

"How does a courtesan dress?" she demanded.

"Very much like you," answered Dumas.

Nowadays neither players nor public are shocked. Perhaps sin has become old-fashioned, or virtue, or tears and broken hearts.

Not long ago a man wrote a play the hero of which wouldn't marry the woman he loved because he was a foundling. A manager laughed at it. "Say," he told the unsophisticated playwright, "the girl would consider that an ideal match without any mother-in-law."

That is how morals and manners are changing. Another play based on a novel of young Dumas, "The Clemenceau Case," also stirred up indignant protest a generation ago because of a studio scene in which a model was supposed to pose in the altogether. Since then Earl Carroll and Flo Ziegfeld have made Mother Eve seem overdressed.

Times have certainly changed.

Newspaper Adventure On Enright Screen

"Scandal for Sale," featuring Charles Bickford, Rose Hobart and Pat O'Brien, opened yesterday in the Enright. It is a story of newspaper adventure, moving rapidly from Boston to New York and climaxed by a trans-Atlantic flight. Bickford plays the role of a managing editor who tires of conservative journalism and becomes a tabloid exploiter.

Marlene Sings Again In Blonde Venus

Marlene Dietrich will sing on the screen again in her new starring picture, "Blonde Venus," it has been at the Paramount studios. It will be the first time she has vocalized since "Morocco" the picture in which she made her American premiere

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Determination

A FEW HOURS after Bill Smith made his entrance into this strange world, he gave vent to a loud and vigorous squawk. His father, having known but one remedy for everything during his life, attempted to give the infant a healthy shot of rye whisky. And if his wife's screams hadn't stopped him, our story would have ended at this very point.

Pop Smith didn't mean any harm by that action. You would have had to excuse him on the ground that he was drunk. It was as good an excuse as any, and pop had been using it for 20 years. And he was telling the truth whenever he used it, too. For the simple reason that he had been drunk for 20 years.

The old man was the owner of one of the most popular saloons in the neighborhood. Which was just as well, because it would have taken the combined products of several distilleries to satisfy the elder Smith's craving for the fluid that paralyzes. He was that kind of stew.

Thus, as Bill grew older, he became a product of an environment that even a pig wouldn't envy. His father felt just a little stronger with each drink and, when he was generously plastered, his passion was to slug little Bill, the youngest of the family, and work right on up to the mother.

Mamma, too, had learned to like the cup that jeers. It wasn't her fault in the beginning, I suppose, but she wasn't strong enough to lead her husband out of the rough. So she took the next best step, and went in with him.

The end was inevitable. Like love, whisky is something you can fight for only so long. On pop's last adventure among the pink elephants and the red goats, they brought him home dead. And just two weeks later, his widow followed in whatever direction he had taken.

We'll forget the rest of the children in this story and concentrate on Bill Smith. What happens to such a kid as that? He was not a fool by any means, and he had been presented with a horrible example of the havoc that comes of excessive drinking. He had seen everything, and he understood. So he did what, to his mind, was the only logical thing.

What's that? You think he took a pledge and never touched a drop of liquor as long as he lived? Don't be sillye. He set out immediately to see if he couldn't break some of his late father's records . . .

I'll have to admit at this point that Bill didn't do a bad job in the attempt. If pop had been a champion in knocking his liver for a loop, his son was a fine runner-up. With the coming of our fine prohibition law, Bill kept the old saloon running full blast.

Along came Pauline and, for the first time in years, Bill began to limit himself to a quart a day. She was a cute kid with big eyes, and she made the young man's heart pound whenever he was with her.

In due time, Bill observed an old custom that has been fading rapidly of recent years. He asked Pauline to marry him. The girl gave him the old, shy yes. They fell into each other's arms, and all was right with the world. For the time being, of course.

The time lasted fairly long—for such a bird as Bill. Within a year there was a baby. Within two years there was another. And then, as the kids began to grow, Bill turned into an exact duplicate of his fascinating daddy. He would take a few pokes at the children, hand his wife a delightful slap on the chine and then go to bed a very happy man indeed.

But Bill's wife, luckily enough for her, was by no means of the same temperament as his mother had been. She took five or six raps, gave Bill plenty of chances—and finally moved out, bag, baggage and children. Before he quite realized what had happened, Bill's only connection with the Marriage Club was the weekly alimony check he had to hand out.

So Bill became a worse souse than ever, if that were possible. He had an excuse to get drunk now, something he had lacked in other days. Just as long as he continued to serve free drinks, the boys sat around and cried with him.

One night, when the lamentations were loud and long, a couple of congenial gentlemen wandered into the joint. They had a few drinks, and then made known the pleasant fact that they were revenue men. Soused to the gills, Bill refused to take his punishment the easiest way. He took several swings at the revenue men—and one swing connected.

Shortly after, the law connected. Not only did he lose his speakeasy, but Bill was sentenced to one year in jail.

In the hoosegow, Bill had plenty of time to sober up—and he did it with a vengeance. Overnight, he came to a sudden realization of the harm that whisky had done him. He had never learned how to be moderate in his guzzling, and this was the result.

The same thing happened to Bill then as has happened to many men before him. In the twinkling of a rye, he became an ardent prohibitionist. He wasn't going to run any speakeasy when he was freed. No, sir. As far as he was concerned, prohibition was the greatest thing in the world.

To the devil with whisky! He was through from that day on. Not only that, but he was going to devote his life to an effort to make other drunkards see the light. He would find himself a decent job during the day and spend the rest of his time working for the prohibition cause. That was his resolution.

When he was released, he immediately raced to give his ex-wife the good news. Too late. She had married again, and had moved to a small town in the West with her new husband and the two children. Bill took the rap like the new man that he was. He refused to take so much as one little drink to forget. He merely smiled, shrugged his shoulders and went out looking for that job.

In a month, he was flat broke. With his record, he couldn't find a job. So finally, in desperation, he sought the aid of his parole officer. The latter nodded, and said that he would get him a job. He was more than happy to see one of his charges going to work.

Bright and early the next morning, Bill went to the address that had been given him and reported for work. The job was the making of plates for automobiles. You've seen them, I suppose. When they're finished they read:

"Repeal The 18th Amendment."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Most of the society conversations nowadays when not about low golf scores concern the folks who are planning to go out of town. For there'll probably be no more weddings or large events until August. To be exact, weddings that will grace August and September will bring back large gatherings.

In the meantime those enjoying golf and tennis and swimming and contract on country club terraces are interested in those folks who are going away.

One vivacious golfer will be much missed this summer, Mrs. Thomas J. Hilliard. She and her children, Mary and Elsie, Thomas J. Hilliard, Jr., Harry T. Hilliard and William R. Hilliard are at Beaumaris, Canada, and plan to remain until mid-September.

Now In Canada

Mrs. Charles Dickey Anderson hasn't gone to her Cape Cod summer place yet. But she is out of town. Just now she's spending some time with her son-in-law and daughter, the A. B. McClarys, of Windsor, Vt.

Again this summer the Edward Vose Babcocks are summering at their country place, inviting "Vosemary Farms," Gibsonia.

This morning we learned of the approaching marriage of a girl who used to live in Washington, Pa., and who is well-known here. Dorothy Parsons Hudson, daughter of Attorney Roy Kent Hudson, of Washington, D. C., has named Thursday, August 18, as the date for her marriage to Thomas Edward Warner, of Greensboro, N. C. The ceremony will take place at 9 o'clock in the evening in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Cooper Parsons, of Washington, D. C.

Hudson Wedding

Eleanor Wilkins, of Ardmore, will be maid of honor, and Margaret Van Voorhis and Helen Campbell, of Washington, D. C.; Marian Cooley and Jane Hudson, a cousin of the bride, of Pittsburgh; Margaret Carollton, of New York, and Ann Louise Webb, of Baltimore, a cousin of the bridegroom, will be bridesmaids.

Thomas Edward Warner will be his brother's best man, and Harvey Webb, of Baltimore; Charles K. Harpster, Eugene L. Richards and Edward L. Coulter, all of Greensboro, and J. Wayne Cooper, of New York, will be ushers.

Men in Party

Mr. Warner and his bride-to-be plan to sail from New York, August 19, for a honeymoon in the Austrian Tyrol and the Italian lake country, and will be at home after November 1 in Greensboro.

The bride-elect attended Washington Seminary and the Car School of New York, later studying at the Sorbonne, Paris. Her fiance, after going to Andover, was graduated from the University of Virginia and Harvard Law School.

RED IS THE COLOR AT SMART RESORTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 14.—Reds that are bright and light are this year's most successful clothes colors, according to reports from Southern resorts. At Cannes, at Juan-les-Pins and at Antibes—fashionable Mediteranean towns—reds are being worn on the beaches, in the casinos and at night clubs.

* * *

SCARLET seems to be the favorite right now. Yellowish reds appear in bathing suits and evening clothes, mostly. The reds used for sports clothes and daytime dresses and suits are usually darker and less elementary. Wine reds and brownish reds are beginning to appear in daytime clothes and are listed at the top of forecasted colors for fall.

* * *

RED-WITH-COLOR as a fashion scheme takes many new forms this year. Along the Riviera there are many examples of the type of color combining that Paris favors right now—two variations of the same color used together as if they were two different colors. Thus orangy red will serve as trimming, via a scarf, on a dress of maroon; geranium red is combined with scarlet; purplish and reddish reds are worn together.

* * *

THERE IS, of course, more of red and white than any other combination. The suit with striped blouse in today's sketch, from Worth, is especially popular along the Riviera. It is one of the new serge weaves that is slightly softer than old-fashioned serge, yet not soft enough to be classed as a tweed.

* * *

THE SKIRT gets fullness at both front and back through four plaits that begin below the yoke line. The jacket is exceptionally short, yet is well fitted in all the way to its hem, allowing for no flare.

* * *

THE BLOUSE, of red-and-white striped crepe de chine, is cut along the shoulders and at the throat on the same lines as the jacket. There is a cravat of white crepe de chine edged with the striped silk.

Mercersburg Girl Marrying in Clarksburg

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Austin Smith announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mabel Irene Smith, to Daniel Heefner, of Mercersburg, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Heefner, of Waynesboro, which is taking place at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Clarksburg, W. Va. Officiating is the Rev. Dr. Boyd Edwards, headmaster of the Mercersburg Academy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is attended by only two small cousins, Jean and Anne Morris, as flower girls. Dr. Mark Heefner is his brother's best man. After a brief wedding trip abroad, they will reside in Mercersburg.

The bride, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College and Columbia University, has taught at Wellesley and Mt. Holyoke and served a year as laboratory technician for Dr. Florence Sabin, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York. She has recently been an instructor in the nursery school of Temple University.

College Teacher

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and is editor of the Mercersburg Academy Alumni Quarterly and contributor to the Dictionary of American Biography. He is secretary of the general alumni association of Mercersburg Academy and a member of the American Alumni Council.

There Are Ways to Get Rid of Inconsiderate Visitors

Do folks make a roadhouse of your home?

Do they drop in, park on you for dinner, and then stay till the wee sma' hours, no matter how tired you are, or how early you have to heave out the next morning?

That was what was going on in Tired's life.

"If only we could get rid of them long enough to go to a show, or to sit and rest a minute by ourselves!" she moaned. "But no! Day after day, evening after evening, there they are, singing 'We won't Go Home Until Morning' till we're nearly crazy!"

Dear Miss Martin—

I've just read that letter from Tired, and it gave me a pain. How inconsiderate people can be! You'd think they would have sense enough to not impose on others like that.

Well, I had the same thing to contend with, once. That is, people tried to be like that, but didn't get away with it, I am a little different from Tired. Frankly, I don't think she's the type of person who would, or could, take the advice you gave her. She is the sort who lets people walk on her. I am not. So things weren't quite so bad for me.

Anyway, when things began to get too thick I just got out from under by going out a great deal myself, so I was never home when these spongers breezed over or tried to phone me.

I went shopping, or walking, or to shows, or took courses in some things I wanted to study. There are always plenty of good university extension courses to take up your time and improve your mind if you want to use them. I had tea downtown. I visited friends myself—different ones.

A WELCOME RELIEF

I always finished my work and went out early and stayed out till just time to get dinner; then every evening my husband and I went driving, or to a lecture, or the theater, or to mother's, or some place. For a long time we were "never at home."

When these folks did get in touch with us, they always complained, "We tried to get you. Don't you ever stay home? We called at such and such a time," and so on. Well, we always had the same excuse—"Oh, we have been so busy."

Well, finally they just got out of the habit of thinking they could dodge in and park themselves, and they never come now unless they're definitely invited. It certainly is a relief. We give parties, but the guests don't invite themselves.

That's one way of doing it. And even if they drop in when you're just ready to eat, like Tired's friends had the habit of doing, there is always a way.

EXCUSE READY

She could always excuse yourself by saying, "I must run upstairs and dress now, for I must be at such and such a place at 8:30," or something like that; then she and her husband could go out, and slip back and go to bed without lighting the lights, or answering the doorbell if it rang. After a month or so of that, her "friends" would lose their "drop in on you" habit.

I know how Tired feels when she says couldn't "be mean" to anyone, but how about being mean to yourself? The trouble with her is, she thinks too much about other people's feelings and not enough about her own, and that is just as bad as being selfish. If you don't take care of yourself, you're not doing what you should do.

Well, anyway, here's hoping she's had a good rest by this time. I have! RELIEVED.

That's a good recipe, sister!

And you're right about "taking care of yourself," for if you don't do it, no one else will; and you have no more right to destroy yourself than to destroy your neighbor.

Ladies' Man Doesn't Always Make the Best Husband, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

The best beau does not always make the best husband.

The girl who has married the beau who dressed so snappily and danced so divinely and liked to drive and dine is often sitting at home wondering just whom he might be driving and dining and dancing with just then.

It's nice to have a boy friend that all the other girls admire and to have them envy you because of him, but as a husband a ladies' man is not such a comfort.

The beau who isn't so dressy or dizzy over dames and dancing is the better matrimonial bargain.

He's more interested in his work and likes sports events and his men pals.

Board of Strategy Holds Meeting

I pondered deeply for several seconds as Dicky asked "What in the name of the seven hinges Mary was up to?

"I can tell you in part," I think, I said quietly. They all three stared at me.

"The devil you can!" Dicky exclaimed. "D'ye mean to say you've been keeping something up your sleeve all this while?"

"I haven't seen any chance to insert it, yet," I said.

"Tell me quickly what you mean," Lillian said tensely.

"It isn't very much," I said, "and you know part of it already. It's one reason why you went up to the camp. You remember that Mary said she had some scheme on hand for getting something out of Charles Owen?"

"Yes?" Lillian's upward inflection was breathless. "Well?"

"Well," I said quickly, "she said something else, which I am not at liberty to tell you, but which makes me think that she has deliberately planned this very stunt. I wouldn't be afraid to wager a good deal that she is not at all impressed with Charles Owen and, instead, is fooling him."

"Don't be too sure of that, Lady Fair!" Harry Underwood struck in. "Pitting any girl who is not the modern substitute for Pompadour or de Stael against Charles Owen would be like putting a fighting bull terrior and a scotty into the same cage. The scotty would bear himself valiantly, no doubt, but he'd just naturally have no chance at all."

EXPLAINS ABOUT RONALD

"I think you're right," Lillian said, dully. "Always, when Owen is near me, I feel as if a cold wind were blowing across the back of my neck. I'm afraid of him, and I'm wondering whether Marion's undoubted interest in him is going to be affected materially by her disgust at his demand for secrecy."

"What was the idea," Dicky asked irrelevantly, "of having Marion and Ronald come down together in the small car? Was that Ronald's maneuvering, alone, or were you in on it?"

Lillian opened her eyes wide at him.

"To tell the truth, I planned it," she said. "Ronald was too hurt by Marion's caprices during the last few days to ask her anything. But I felt that I wanted her with him. The Lawd, he knows, that I haven't cottoned to that romance any too much, but since that—that—"

"Words deleted by censor," Dicky Put in gravely.

"Exactly," she said, with a wry smile. "These last few days I've felt like the old woman who shouted 'Long live the king' so persistently in front of the royal palace that the king, a most unpopular ruler, leaned out out of the window and asked her why she called out so persistently.

'Sire,' she said, 'your grandfather was a bad man, your father was worse, and you're worse yet. The Lord help us when we get the next one!' Then she called again 'Long live the king!'"

A NEW SCHEME

"And probably got the guillotine for her impudence," Dicky commented. "Let her probable fate be a lesson to you. It's my private opinion that the worst thing you probably could have done in this particular case was to send the girl down alone with Ronald."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply this, my sweet, ingenuous maid," Dicky said. "If at this particular stage of affairs you want to sell Ronald to your child, start a program disapproving the idea and let Marion know your disapproval. Let her believe that you're trying to keep Ronald away from her.

"If, at the same time, you could manage to hedge on some of the horror you've evinced toward the gifted Mr. Owen, and make her believe that, upon thinking it over, you quite approve of an elderly son-in-law, and believe that he would be able to guide her young and flighty footsteps into matured dignity and beauty, that might help a lot."

Lillian's face was suddenly eager, alive.

"What a fool I've been!" she said emphatically. "This scheme may not work, but at least I've something to go on. Just watch me start in on the deadly objections to Ronald!"

"Have you thought," I asked quietly, "that Ronald's reaction to all this may be an abrupt leave-taking?"

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

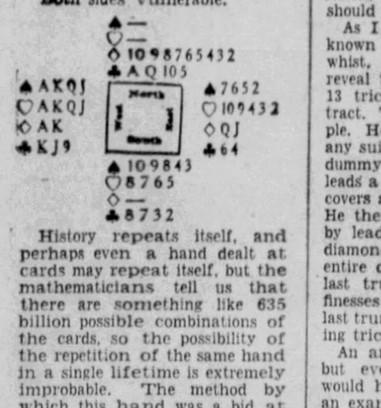
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Fairy Story

Some bridge hands, like some great men and some great stories, are "of the immortal few that were not born to die." Long before the birth of Contract Bridge, the game of Whist, the great-grandfather of Contract, numbered its devotees by the millions. Great national and international congresses were held in which Whist was played in Duplicate, and the results attained on unusual hands were recorded by those having scientific interest in the game.

One of the most noted Whist hands, which proved a trap for the feet of the unwary, was the dual pictured below:

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



History repeats itself, and perhaps even a hand dealt at cards may repeat itself, but the mathematicians tell us that there are something like 635 billion possible combinations of the cards, so the possibility of the repetition of the same hand in a single lifetime is extremely improbable. The method by which this hand was a bid at Contract is fantastic in the extreme. The correspondent who sent it gave the following remarkable bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1 ♣ (1)	Pass
Pass	3 NT (2)	4 ♣ (3)	Pass
Pass	4 NT (4)	5 ♣ (5)	Pass
Pass	5 NT (6)	6 ♣ (7)	Pass
Pass	Double (8)	Pass (9)	Pass
Pass

(1) Extraordinary. A hand containing 1½ honor-tricks, and choosing the four-card suit rather than the nine-card suit as an opening bid!

(2) Certainly sound.

(3) Amazing, but then North was a student of whist, no doubt.

(4) Evidently West was not.

(5) Admirable restraint!

(6) Admirable restraint!

(7) Ajaz defies the lightning.

(8) Who would not?

(9) The first false note. North, as a student of whist, should bid seven clubs.

As I have said, this hand is known to every student of whist, and a little study will reveal that North can make all 13 tricks at his bizarre contract. The method is very simple. He ruffs the first lead of any suit chosen by East, enters dummy by ruffing a diamond, leads a trump from dummy and covers any card played by West. He then re-enters the dummy by leading a second round of diamonds, thus establishing the entire diamond suit. Dummy's last trump is led and North finesses. He then draws West's last trump and wins the remaining tricks with his diamonds.

An amazing hand, no doubt, but even Baron Munchausen would have feared to use it as an example of play of a hand at Bridge. However, good hands, like good stories, never die.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

Today's Question:

♠ 4 3 2 ♡ A Q 10 9 6 5 ◇ 5 2 ♣ 7 3

Answer: North should double—a Penalty Double, in view of the fact that South has previously bid. The hand is ill adapted to any other declaration and may produce a stiff penalty coupled with South's honor strength.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"Triple Vaccine" Proved Preventative of Typhoid Fever

A generation ago typhoid fever was one of the most common causes of death. Today it is a rare disease, for the typhoid germ is known, and prevention of typhoid fever is now possible.

Dr. Copeland

Typhoid fever is caused by a germ called the "typhoid bacillus." These germs live and multiply in the walls of the intestine and in the blood of an infected person, and produce a poison which causes typhoid fever.

Above 50 years ago it was discovered that typhoid fever germs were thrown off in the eliminations from an afflicted person, these waste materials often being deposited where they contaminated drinking water, while the unwashed hands of a sufferer from the disease, or a "typhoid carrier," often infected food.

A carrier is an individual who has been in contact with typhoid fever and harbors the germs without being infected himself. Usually such a person is not aware of the fact that he carries the germs of typhoid fever and is a menace to society.

Scientists soon realized that typhoid fever could be prevented by purifying water and safeguarding all food. All cities and towns now demand a clean water supply and enforce pure food laws. Public health bureaus follow up and keep track of all typhoid carriers. In this way typhoid fever has been controlled.

But the greatest advancement made in the war against typhoid fever was due to the discovery of its prevention by vaccination, which consists of injecting dead typhoid germs underneath the skin. The vaccinated person develops immunity or protection against typhoid fever, and the vaccination itself is a simple procedure.

Within the last few years a vaccine has been perfected against typhoid fever, called a "triple vaccine," because it protects against typhoid fever and two types of para-typhoid fever, diseases similar to typhoid fever. This vaccine, injected at weekly intervals for three weeks, gives complete protection from typhoid fever. It is now given to all soldiers and to many government employes. One never hears of a case of typhoid fever in the United States Army or Navy and this marvelous record is due to the compulsory rule of vaccination against typhoid fever.

I would advise all civilians who travel or who live in a community where the water and milk supply are unprotected to resort to vaccine protection. If cases of typhoid are reported in your district, do not delay in obtaining this simple protection.

Answers to Health Queries

E. M. S. Q.—What should a girl of 15, 5 feet 5 inches tall, weigh? 2—What do you advise for superfluous hair?

A.—She should weigh about 121 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. 2—Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bridge Prizes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I gave a bridge party in honor of one of the girls who was going abroad. I gave a "guest present," and the guest also had high score, so I also gave her the first prize.

Since then some of the girls said I was wrong in giving the prize to my guest when I had given her a present. Then some think she was wrong for accepting it, that she should have given it to the girl who was second high.

We both feel very badly about it. I feel that, as I gave the party, bought both the gifts, the prize and the guest present, myself, and as my friend was going away, it was perfectly right. However, I would appreciate your kindness if you will give us your views on this matter.

My thanks to you. D.

Everything you did about this was right, my dear friend, and any criticism of what you did is thoroughly unjust and misplaced. The guest present, which was, too, a bon voyage present, was a charming gesture for you to make, and, since the guest won the first prize, she should have been given the first prize. And there wasn't a reason in the world why she should have given her well-won prize to anyone else. Don't pay the slightest attention to any adverse criticism about this . . . people who make such unfriendly and unjust comments have very little to do in a world where there are such pleasant things to do!

Engagement Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be bad form to announce an engagement through the newspapers when one is not going to send out engraved invitations to the wedding—only announcements afterward? This isn't going to be a real wedding . . . just a few friends.

READER.

No, indeed. It would be in excellent form to make this announcement of the engagement through the newspapers. And it makes no difference that an informal wedding is to follow. The engagement announcement is quite a distinct detail.

FOUR FAMOUS DANCE BANDS -:- British 'Cellist In Air Farewell

Music and Drama to Mark Bastille Day in Radio Broadcast to France

Three hours with four nationally-known dance orchestras again is scheduled on WCAE tonight, beginning at 10. Remaining on the air until 1 a. m., the station offers the music of Ted Fiorito and his orchestra, playing from San Francisco, during the cigaret hour, with Walter Winchell, the breezy Broadway columnist, at 10. At 11:15 Paul Whiteman's rhythmic interpretations of popular selections are heard for 45 minutes from the Biltmore Cascades, followed by Don Bestor's Orchestra, playing from Hotel New Yorker, in a half hour of dance melodies at midnight. Charlie Agnew's music from the Edgewater Beach Hotel is scheduled from 12:30 to 1 a. m.

Mr. Winchell

A special program in connection with Bastille Day, the French national holiday commemorating the fall of the Bastille on July 14, 1789, is presented over an NBC network, including KDKA, tonight at 11:15. The program also is carried to listeners in Paris through the short-wave facilities of W8XK.

The Bastille in music and drama is the theme of the broadcast, which features Cesare Sodero and the NBC Concert Orchestra. A special score has been arranged for the program by Sodero, and dramatic interludes from French history and Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," portraying scenes from the French Revolution, are presented.

Sheridan Russell, distinguished English 'cellist, makes the second of two appearances as guest artist with the Coffee Concert Orchestra on WCAE tonight at 9:30. The program, his last recital before returning to England, includes "Le Cygne," by Saint-Saens, and Schubert's "Ave Maria."

Program Pointers

"Letty" Flynn, famed football star who sped the pulses of Yale rooters with his gridiron activities a number of years ago, and his wife, the former Nora Langhorne, member of a famous Southern family, make the first of a series of appearances as featured soloists on the "Midsummer Nights" broadcasts over WJAS tonight at 8:30. Their performance on last week's program resulted in their engagement for the entire series. Mrs. Flynn is one of the celebrated Langhorne quintet of beautiful sisters, which includes Lady Astor, Mrs. T. Moncure Perkins, Mrs. Robert H. Brand and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, the original "Gibson girl."

"Lefty" Flynn

The story of how a dog saved the lives of 600 persons is dramatized during the Rin-Tin-Tin program on KDKA tonight at 8:15.

Withdrawing their candidacy for president and vice president because they're unable to agree which should be which, Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson nominate their own candidate when they appear with Rudy Vallee on WCAE tonight at 8.

"New Breath," the story of Dr. George E. Holtzapple, the first man to use oxygen to save human life in pneumonia cases, is dramatized during the "Danger Fighters" program on KDKA at 9. Dr. Holtzapple, now living in York, Pa., is a listener tonight.

The "Caravan of Interest" switches from 7:45 to 8:30 on WWSW, beginning tonight.

The first of four Toscanini Fund Concerts by a 52-piece orchestra with soloists is presented today on WCAE at 1:30, under the direction of Sandor Harmati. Ivan Ivanzoff, tenor, is today's soloist. The second concert is scheduled Tuesday at the same hour.

Fan Fare

June Pursell, the blonde singer of ballads, returns to the NBC-WEAF network with a new weekly series to open soon . . . The musical setup includes a trio . . . Nancy Garner, typically Texan and a cousin of John N. Garner, starts a new series on the same network a week from today . . . Although a coloratura soprano, Miss Garner has a diversified repertoire of blues, specialties, classical and semi-classical selections . . . Under the name of Margaret Miller, she played the leading roles in "Rio Rita" and "The Desert Song."

Miss Pursell

Johnny Marvin is well known among the child patients at St. Agnes Hospital in White Plains, N. Y. . . . Once a week he goes there to entertain and play with them . . .

"Never cry quits" is the motto of the NBC staff members . . . They're going to complete the unfinished broadcast of the "melle-drama," "Human Hearts," one of these days. The play was originally scheduled as a half-hour performance, but at the end of the allotted time the cast of staff members, from executives to page boys, had reached only page 22, with 12 more to go.

The theme song used for the "Announcers' Confessions" broadcast on KDKA was "The Girl I Left Behind Me" . . . Paul Whiteman testifies that he now weighs only 185 pounds as compared with the former 310 . . . Welcome Lewis has a standing order with her bookseller for every book of modern verse that is published . . . Ranny Weeks is considering an offer to sing in a Paris revue this fall . . . Frank Luther swims a mile before breakfast all summer to keep his voice in trim.

Which Gasolines Knock the most?

Electric Ear REVEALS THE TRUE KNOCK-RATING OF 16 RIVAL GASOLINES IN ACTUAL ROAD TEST

For the first time, 16 rival gasolines told their true stories . . . while the Electric Ear listened in . . . and recorded every ping and pound.

And every knock was a boost for the New TYDOL — winner in every test. First in anti-knock quality. And first in power, too. For the less a gas knocks the more power it develops, as every motorist knows.

Try it. Check its power and anti-knock. Compare it with any gasoline at any price. You don't need a month. Or a week. One day's driving, or even a single trip, will sell you 100% on the New TYDOL, and keep you sold.

100 Irwin Strikers Await Conference

IRWIN, Pa., July 14.—One hundred employes of the R. S. Altman feed plant, who struck today, lined along the Lincoln highway awaiting a conference with the plant owner. The men said they were paid 15 to 20 cents an hour and are demanding 30 cents. No trouble resulted.

Altman said he thought the difficulty could be adjusted.

REPUBLICAN CHIEFTAINS DEFY PINCHOT ON VETO THREAT

B. E. F. TO FIGHT AT POLLS SAYS LEADER

Waters Outlines Plans Of Vets in Two Talks Here

A people's lobby, backed by a permanent organization of veterans and an auxiliary of their families and relatives, with membership totaling 25,000,000 voters, will be the outgrowth of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces, was the prediction of National Commander W. W. Waters, who today returned to Washington after two appearances here last night.

The organization will be backed by a permanent cantonment in Washington, definite plans for which will be annouuced within the next 10 days, Waters revealed.

MEETING IN THEATER

The Oregon veterans' leader delivered his principal address last night before 900 veterans and friends in the Harris Theater. He later spoke at the Capitol Theater, McKeesport, under auspices of the Carl Everett Post, V. F. W. He was piloted here by Cyrus A. Davis, local flying attorney, who also spoke. Mayor Edward McCloskey, of Johnstown, presented a motion picture showing conditions at the bonus camps.

Waters appealed for money to provide food and care for the 20,000 campers in the capital. A collection netted $65. He declared against food being sent to specific groups, urging delivery to camp headquarters for general distribution.

Explaining the elaborate plans for the permanent cantonment, Waters said it would be built on private property with barracks for the single veterans, cottages for families, a dairy, chicken farm, hospital and other sustaining features.

WON'T LEAVE CAPITAL

He said:

"The veterans will stay in Washington until Hell freezes over. We have intelligent plans not ready to be announced, but through which the permanent organization will be built. It will be ready to strike at the polls in November those politicians who are unfriendly to legislation for the veterans or the masses. We will turn the government over to the people, where it belongs."

Waters was escorted to the meeting by County Council band of the Veterans of Foreign Wars through downtown streets.

HAGGARD VETS WON'T QUIT

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(INS.)—Haggard from 12 hours of ceaseless moving, California's "rebel" bonus marchers besieging the Capitol grounds, served notice on Congress today they would stay on their feet until they dropped, if necessary, but had no idea of giving up.

Their leader, Roy W. Robertson, of Los Angeles, announced he would appeal to Vice President Curtis and Speaker of the House Garner for permission for his men to sleep on the Capitol grounds during the day, but that if the permission was not forthcoming, they would continue to wind in and out of the Capitol walks in procession.

The marchers numbered about 300 and were a tired looking lot. Police, almost as tired, kept them on the go, under orders from Curtis, in the hopes of dispersing them.

The $100,000 fund voted for transporting homeward the veterans camped here was made available today by the House until July 25. The Senate has yet to act.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 14.

To the Editor of Sun-Telegraph:

Here is a funny situation. The women anti-prohibitionists said, "we will support the party that comes out for direct repeal." And they would if it had been the Republican party. But as luck would have it, it was those "mangy" Democrats instead.? Now most of these women are wealthy Republicans, and they are having a time now trying to get out of it. The ladies want prohibition repealed ah right, but not bad enough to repeal the Republican party with it. They want it wet, but not wet enough to be Democratic. In other words, politics is thicker than beer.

Yours,
WILL.

Prosperity Dawns on Fireman Because He Resembles Pop-Eye

PAIR HOLDS UP TROLLEY CAR

Clubbing the operator on the head with the butt of a revolver, two bandits wearing handkerchief masks early today held up a Negley avenue street car in North St. Clair street, near Callowhill street, and escaped with $2.50 in tokens.

There were no passengers on the car.

The operator, G. M. Bichtel, 61, of 307 North Fairmount avenue, who was treated at Pittsburgh Hospital for a laceration to his head, told police the bandits boarded the street car at Callowhill and North St. Clair street. As he started the car, Bichtel said, one of the bandits hit him on the head and grabbed his money bag, containing the tokens. Bichtel's injury was not serious.

State House Urges Bonus for Vets

Jobless War Veteran Wins $250-a-Week Contract

At those gay volunteer firemen's parties in Tarentum and elsewhere, the youngsters, and oldsters too, pointed to Milton McGeary Black, saying:

One evening, in Turtle Creek, he was acting like Popeye for the crowd, when a movie man caught him in the lens. New York saw the pictures.

And now, with a $250-a-week contract in his pocket Black is going east within a few days to make some "Popeye" movies. He is a roofer by trade, and for 24 years has been a red-shirt with the No. 2 Eureka Hose house, Tarentum. He has been out of work since Christmas. In the war, he was shell-shocked and wounded. He said:

"At every firemen's affair in Western Pennsylvania I am called on to impersonate the famous character which appears in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph daily.

"I signed the contract this week for four years at $250 a week."

HOSPITAL AID SURE—PINCHOT

Gov. Pinchot, replying to a telegram from H. L. Mason, Jr., director of the Allegheny General Hospital, assured him the relief program before the Legislature contemplated restoring the 25 per cent appropriation cut to state-aided hospitals.

In his message Mason declared free medical care is as essential to destitute families as bread, and that abatement of original sums provided by the state would be a blow from which many hospitals could not survive. He continued:

"A thorough study of 500 cases selected at random from several thousands who came to the free dispensary of Allegheny General since March 1 shows that 13 per cent own their own homes and the remainder are tenants or have no roofs over their heads. More than 55 per cent had no wages or other income, and 36 per cent had less than $20 a month."

'THIRD DEGREE' BY POLICEMAN BRINGS FINE

Tube City Officer Must Pay Victim $1,000; Paroled 3 Years

Ruben Stephanovich, McKeesport policeman, found guilty of aggravated assault and battery in alleged administration of the "third degree" to a Negro, was ordered to pay a fine of $200, with damages of $1,000, and paroled for three years by Visiting Judge William A. McConnell today.

The Commonwealth charged that Stephanovich beat McKinley Johnson, McKeesport Negro, with a blackjack, breaking his nose, to compel him to tell what he had observed at the scene of a murder.

Johnson was not accused of the crime, testimony disclosed, but was being held as a material witness.

Before imposing sentence Judge McConnell refused the defendant a new trial. The $1,000 assessed in addition to the fine will be used to pay Johnson's hospital expenses, it was said.

Six Churches Hold West View Picnic

Six churches are picnicking today at West View Park. They are the First, Duquesne Heights and Mt. Washington German Evangelical churches, the Mt. Washington and Hays Methodist Episcopal churches, and the Mt. Washington Baptist Church. The Gusky Orphans' Home is also holding its outing there, too.

Sending Protest To Congressman Too Costly Now

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Everything is going to be taxed as sure as you can hang up a wet stocking with one clothespin.

This Congress isn't through yet, as the boys are figuring out a way to drop another official turnip in the public beef stew.

We have stopped writing letters to our favorite Congressman because it now costs three cents and he was merely our favorite two-cent man.

What are we going to do about it? We're like the old lady on the front porch. The madder she got the faster she rocked.

The best we can hope for is a change of administrations in November and a government of the people, for the folks and by the public.

And it's our dope that the Republicans are going to be slapped in the face with a complete census.

WON'T 'SNOOP' ON ENEMIES, COYNE SAYS

County Cost Inquiry To Begin After Relief Session

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, July 14.—The Coyne committee to investigate alleged high costs of government in Allegheny County will organize as soon as the special session of the Legislature adjourns. It will start work immediately, holding sessions open to the public.

The committee, appointed under a resolution introduced by Senator James J. Coyne and controlled by the Oakland Senator, consists of Coyne, Senator Morris Einstein and Representatives James Wettach, Thomas W. Neely and George H. Soffel. Coyne is to be elected chairman, when the committee organizes in Pittsburgh. Wettach probably will be the secretary.

FRIENDLY TO MAYOR

It is a committee friendly to the Coyne-Kline political organization and without any friendly leanings toward the present Board of County Commissioners. In the face of opinions that the committee would open fire on the offices under the Commissioners, Coyne today said it would not be his purpose to "snoop" merely for the purpose of being annoying to political foes. He said:

"The committee will organize for the purpose of finding some method for reducing the costs of government and saving money for the taxpayers. The committee will not organize to snoop on any individuals or organization or to get the goods on any one. So many committees don't care what they cost, but are anxious to find some one violation of one law and to see someone go behind the bars. That won't be our purpose."

Despite this statement, the belief persists that there will be some political by-paths to the investigation, with Coyne inquiring particularly into bureaus headed by appointees of County Commissioners C. M. Barr and William D. Mansfield.

KLINE MUM ON PROBE

Mayor Charles H. Kline has not had an opportunity to study the provisions of the Coyne resolution to investigate cost of government in Allegheny County, and possibly Pittsburgh, he said late yesterday.

Asked if he would comment on the resolution, the Mayor said:

"I have been so busy the past few days that I haven't had time to study the matter. Until I do I don't care to comment."

Budget Controller Robert J. Alderdice is on record as favoring an investigation of the cost of government in the city. He cites the record of the Council in reducing taxes during 1932 and the curtailed activities which have resulted in economies here.

Cycle, Auto Crash Hurts Two Youths

Edward Zebert, 20, of Prospect Hills, Jefferson Township, and Louis Hogler, 18, of Willock, were seriously injured when their motorcycle sideswiped an automobile at the Broughton and Hillcrest roads, near South Park, yesterday. Both were taken to South Side Hospital.

Jailed as Fraud

RALPH W. LUECKE, 41

CHURCH FRAUD SUSPECT HELD

An order for $30 worth of candy and a check, both declared to be faked, landed Ralph W. Luecke, 41, "man of 1,000 aliases" in jail here today following an attempt, police declare, to mulct several Episcopal clergymen and women of that faith.

Luecke, recognized as the man who a year ago had placed an order with an East End store for candy, cashing a bad check in payment, police say, was arrested in Mt. Washington yesterday. E. C. Celb, 416 Denniston avenue, recognizing Luecke in the street, followed him several blocks, finally calling Patrolman Herman Steubenrauch.

Luecke, police say, represented himself as being connected officially with the Episcopal church, and under promise of obtaining better positions among the clergy and parishioners, gained their confidence and invariably left them with a rubber check.

Luecke was held on a suspicious person charge.

PUSH ECONOMY PROGRAM IN ASSEMBLY

Slight Modification To Measures Indicated

HARRISBURG, July 14.—(AP.)—The $23,000,000 governmental economy program advanced closer to the Governor and his promised veto today as the General Assembly ended its sessions for the week.

The rate of progress lessened somewhat as the Republican leaders prepared to override the veto should it materialize. In both the Senate and House there were well defined indications that the program was to be slightly modified to attract the maximum support of both branches if the Governor rejects the finished legislation.

The Senate, after passing on second reading the majority of the bills slashing the state expenditures beyond the figure the Governor believes advisable, recommitted the measures for further study and amendment.

There were reliable reports that the purpose was to reduce the cuts of appropriations to hospitals, sanitoria and penal institutions. This would partially meet some of the objections of the Chief Executive and, the leaders believe, would bolster their forces in both branches.

BILL RETURNED

Similar tendencies were displayed in the House, where a few stray measures of the economy program remain. The Spangler bill, reducing the appropriation for the Pymatuning Dam project, was returned to the Appropriations Committee for amendment, Chairman Steedle said the plan is to consider changes which would reduce the cut in this item further.

The dam construction project is one of the major "work relief" activities in the northwestern section of the state. The original appropriation of $1,500,000 was cut to $750,000 by the Talbot-Turner bill included in the first draft of the economy program. At this figure, Gov. Pinchot said in his message to the special session, all work on the dam would be stopped. When the present economy plan was moulded, $375,000 was restored to increase the total appropriation to $1,100,000.

Last night Representative Richards, Lawrence, attacked the measure as it came up for final action and the bill was placed on the postponed calendar. Today it went back to committee, where further concessions to the protests from the northwestern part of the state are to be made.

THIRD MOVE

The third move toward compromise was made when Representative Talbot, Delaware, leader of the economy drive, amended his $24,000,000 unemployment relief bill to conform with ideas advanced by the Wade-Sheffer rural group. The change would permit county commissioners of all counties outside of Philadelphia, to divert all or part of their county's share of the $3,000,000 monthly allocation to highway construction work relief.

During its short, featureless session today the House passed finally administration bills restoring $2,992,843 appropriations abated by enactment of the 1931 Talbot $10,000,000 direct relief act.

Today's bills, indorsed by Republican leaders at pre-session conferences with the Governor, restore to their full amounts 1931 appropriations for construction projects, including Pymatuning Dam and for state aided colleges and institutions. Under the economy measures sent to the Senate yesterday, most of these items are cut.

BILL TO GOVERNOR

Only one bill, the second of the session, was sent to the Governor today. It is the McClure Senate bill permitting municipalities, school districts and poor districts to collect taxes in monthly installments.

The House recommitted the Salus Senate bill, permitting municipalities to borrow against uncollected taxes, to insert an amendment to require local court approval of such loans.

Bills upon which the House postponed final action included the Steedle measure to reduce the 1931 special session appropriations to state-owned hospitals and the Staudenmeier (Schuylkill) bills to impose heavy taxes on "highway freight trains" and heavy trucks.

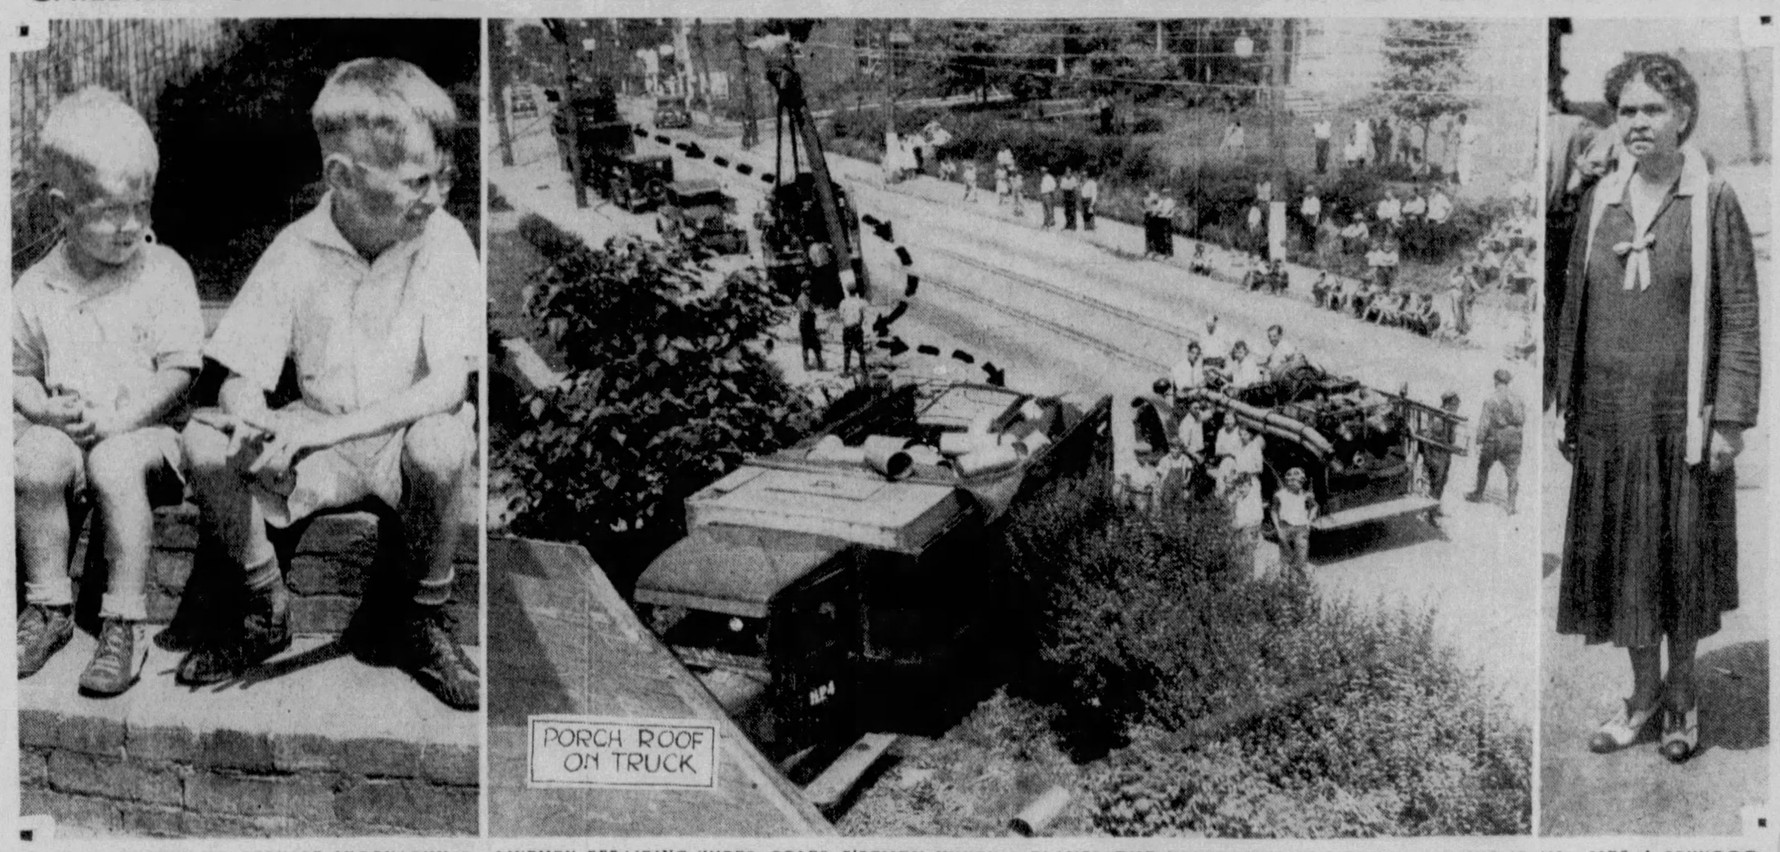
Rockview Fugitive Caught in Cleveland

Joseph Cetinski, 34, of Cleveland, a fugitive from Western Penitentiary at Rockview since July, 1928, was in Cleveland jail today awaiting return to Pittsburgh for sentence. Cetinski and Harry Allen escaped by cutting their way out of the stockade. He was under sentence of three to six years from Allegheny County for robbery and receiving stolen goods.

CHILDREN SAVED FROM FIRE CAUSED BY WILD TRUCK'S CRASH INTO POWER LINE POLE



REGIS M'CONAGHY, 3 BERNARD M'CONAGHY, 7 LINEMEN REPAIRING WIRES, POLES, FIREMEN HUNTING FLAMES, THE HOUSE-WRECKING TRUCK CAUSING IT ALL MRS. J. SCHNOOR

The scene of confusion in Freeport road, Springdale, today after a dairy truck ran wild, sheared off a pole, struck the Schnorr house, wrecking the porch by bringing down the roof upon the motor hood. Mrs. Schnorr was not on the porch as usual, escaped injuries. The McConaghy boys were carried from their home when it and several others took fire, apparently by short circuits caused by the broken pole. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

VETERANS SEEK 'CLEAN-UP' IN POLITICS

Efforts to organize the 55,000 ex-service men of Allegheny County into a formidable political group aiming to "cleaning up" city and county governmental conditions went forward today from two widely separated sections of the county.

In Pittsburgh a group of individuals recruited from the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars went ahead with plans for an independent organization whose combined vote will be used to stamp out "unscrupulous politicians."

In Clairton, another group went ahead with similar plans. Neither is related, other than in the announced purpose coinciding. The Clairton group plans an organization meeting in the Clairton Legion Hall tomorrow evening. The downtown group will meet Tuesday in Kaufmann's dining room.

From the City Post, American Legion, a committee of three was chosen yesterday to represent the Legion group and at Tuesday's meeting of Bayard Atwood Post, V. F. W., similar action will be taken.

Resolutions, drawn up by Attorneys Jacob Shulgold, Thomas Thornton and Jack Elton, all three members of both Legion and the V. F. W., were adopted unanimously by the Legion group yesterday following an adjournment of the official Legion meeting. After adjournment, the group reconvened as individuals and ex-service men, taking the action in that manner so as not to conflict with by-laws of the Legion.

The three chosen as representatives of the Legion group are Frank Gold, William Arthur, past commander, and Paul Hutchinson.

Three File Voluntary Bankruptcy Papers

Three voluntary bankruptcy petitions were filed in Federal court yesterday. Powell Kwiatanowski, of 319 Eighth street, Ambridge, a merchant, listed $21,436.42 liabilities and $4,056.28 assets. Jesse Roy Stone, Pittsburgh real estate agent, listed $16,136.07 liabilities and no assets. W. C. Hoy, Meadville, Crawford County, real estate operator, listed $17,279.32 liabilities and no assets.

THE CO-DIRECTORS

FATHER, KILLER OF 3, BROODS

HARRISBURG, July 14.—(INS.)—Barney Godleskie, 31, who yesterday snatched his three small children from their beds and carried them into the cellar of his home, one by one, and slew them, brooded in his cell today in the Dauphin County Jail here as the specter of his maniacal deed loomed in his distraught mind.

Godleskie, a coal miner, was believed to have suffered a mental aberation following a recent quarrel with his wife, Lucy, who a few days ago left him with the threat that she was going to get a divorce.

Helen, 10, alone escaped her father's wrath.

Mrs. Godleskie, who had obtained employment as a waitress, apparently was unmoved by the tragedy, according to neighbors.

K. C. CHARTERS PICNIC TRAIN

A chartered train will carry picnickers from the Allegheny Valley next Tuesday to attend the joint outing of the Knights of Columbus and the Western Pennsylvania chapters, Catholic Daughters of America, in Kennywood Park. Children will be given free amusement and refreshment tickets. Other features include sports, dancing and card parties.

Chairmen in charge of the various activities include Mrs. Louise Flaherty, Turtle Creek; Miss Josephine Maloney, Vandergrift; George A. Green, Sharpsburg; John J. Healy, McKeesport; J. Paul Aland, Bellevue; Miss Elizabeth O'Neill, J. W. McGowan and Miss Rose Murphy, Pittsburgh.

URGE ECONOMY IN SHARPSBURG

To reduce expenditures to conform with the borough income, Sharpsburg Council last night adopted a motion of Leo R. Horstman, chairman of the finance committee, to have all department managers determine how many employes are necessary for the departments to operate efficiently. The department heads are to report at the recess Council meeting next Monday night.

Horstman reported that, although the expense of running the borough for the first five months of 1932 was practically the same as that of 1931, the income for the same period was more than $13,000 less than that of last year.

OBITUARY

Ernest C. Daum.

Funeral services for Ernest C. Daum, 85, 3916 Franklin road, North Side, who died at the West Penn Hospital yesterday, will be held Saturday afternoon at his late residence. Daum was president of the Daum-Helm Hardware Company. He was born in Germany and came to the United States when 14, settling in Baltimore. He came to Pittsburgh when a young man. Daum was a member of G. A. R. Post No. 88, and also of the Odd Fellows. He leaves his widow, three daughters, Mrs. E. H. Blind, Mrs. W. E. McCain and Nelda; a son, Edward C., and three grandchildren.

Phillips Funeral.

Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Catherine Cronmiller Phillips, wife of John Phillips, Sr., in the chapel of T. P. Hershberger and Sons, 426 South Main street. Mrs. Phillips was born in the West End almost 77 years ago and had lived there all her life. She was a former president of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society; a member of the Women's Home Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid Society of the West End Methodist Episcopal Church. Besides her husband she leaves a son, Daleton M., a grandson and three sisters.

Mrs. Mary A. Kohen.

Mrs. Mary A. Kohen, 85, died today at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Charles N. Carten, at 400 South Linden avenue, East End. Mrs. Kohen had lived most of her life in the North Side. She was a member of St. Bede's Catholic Church. She leaves besides Mrs. Carten, another daughter, Mrs. O. A. Dunn, of New Mexico, and two sisters, Mrs. Cornelius Case and Mrs. H. L. Hetherington.

SIX MEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Six persons were injured when automobiles driven, police said, by Franklin Byers, 31, of 516 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, and David Sloane, 19, of Nicholson street, collided at Bellefield avenue and Bayard street, last night. Sloane's automobile was overturned.

Those injured were Byers and his companion, Harold Obermayer, 45, of the Arlington Apartments; Sloane and three passengers in his car, Isadore Glazer, 20, of 5639 Pocusset street; Leonard Levy, 19, of 5663 Melvin street, and Joseph Zatman, 21, of 5231 Forbes street. They were taken to Homeopathic Hospital.

Finds Woman Beaten, Sounds Fire Alarm

When a pedestrian found a Negro woman unconscious at Soho and Reed streets, he ran to Emmett street and sounded the fire alarm, early today. Firemen and police responded. The victim, Mrs. Sarah Cook, 36, of 2423 Wadsworth street, had been beaten with a club by her husband, a police report said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Don't flirt with heat prostration this year

"KEEP COOL"

TO SUFFER discomfort from heat is bad enough—but your work suffers—your energy, efficiency, your appetite, digestion, disposition—they all suffer. And at night you can't sleep.

So to suffer from heat is more than uncomfortable. It is dangerous to your health. And to a great extent unnecessary.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Faireno Turf Surprise.

VET BEATS BUCS SEVEN OUT OF NINE

THEY WOULD HAVE been giving Pittsburgh a break if they had kept old Tom Zachary in the American League. Ever since the Yankees handed him over to the Braves on waivers a little more than two years ago, the ancient southpaw has been a source of woe to the Buccaneers. The veteran of 35 isn't rated in the pitching scale nearly as high as Ed Brandt, the fellow fork-hander paired with him yesterday in throwing the Pirates for a double loss that whittled their pennant lead to two games as they completed the first half of their 154-game schedule, but he has been considerably more successful than Brandt against the locals.

Tom Zachary

Zachary has broken exactly even since he entered the National League, winning and losing 27 games. Seven of his 27 victories have been scored at the expense of Pittsburgh. In nine tangles with old Tom the Bucs have beaten him only twice. Larry French defeated him in 1930 and Remy Kremer did it last year. The game against French was the only one in his nine starts in which Zachary failed to go the full distance. In the same period, Brandt pitched the same number of games against Pittsburgh, but barely gained an edge, winning five while losing four.

EVIDENTLY BILL TERRY is a manager who does not believe that one run counts for much. At least, the evidence tends to show that he does not play for single markers by resorting to base-stealing.

For since Terry took charge of the New York club on June 4, the Giants have stolen exactly two bases in a total of 36 games. The inference is that there is a vast difference between the types of ball advocated by John McGraw and Terry, as even in lively ball days the former was always strong for hustling on the sacks.

THE GIANTS HAVE stolen 20 bases for the season up to date, and 18 of those were purloined in the 40 games they played under McGraw's managership before the veteran pilot withdrew on June 3. The only steals since were put over by Freddie Lindstrom and Joe Moore.

In the second game of the doubleheader played against the Phils on June 4, the first day of Terry's reign, Lindstrom stole a hassock, and not another Giant steal was registered through the next 21 games until Moore grabbed off one on July 2. Terry seemingly has a system of his own, but judging from the position of the Giants it hasn't turned out so far to be a howling success.

THE BRILLIANT RECORDS made by Floyd Vaughan, Tony Piet and other youngsters this season, when given a chance to play regularly instead of being kept on the bench or shipped back to the minors, may have the effect of making all major league managers more willing to experiment with new timber next season. Many of the older players are on the downgrade, and in view of the way Vaughan, Piet and others have come through when given opportunities on the front line, the pilots may conclude that more can be accomplished by taking a chance with up-and-coming youngsters than by depending on veterans who have little left except the reputations of yesteryear.

Bucky Harris

ONE MANAGER WHO senses such a development is Bucky Harris, of Detroit. He sees great possibilities for rookies in 1923 as likely to grow out of the success of Vaughan, Piet and his own three youthful standouts of the present season—Ray Hayworth, Bill Rogell and Heinie Schuble.

"The fans pay too much attention to old names," Harris remarks. "Even the experts are prone to give too great value to mere names and to ignore young comers. A lot of veterans are wearing out in both leagues. I believe that 1933 will be a grand year for kids. The youngsters of America never faced a finer chance in baseball."

EACH YEAR THE Coast League has a hitter with a record to attract attention. This season it's Oscar Eckhardt, of the Missions, who is leading the league with an average of .403 and who had one consecutive hitting streak of 35 games.

The first five batters include also George Stainback, of Los Angeles, .394; Al Demaree, Sacramento, .377; Mark Koenig, Missions, .367, and Arnold Statz, Los Angeles, .365. Records of ex-Pirates show Foy Frazier hitting .335; Eddie Mulligan, .313; Earl Sheely, .305; Homer Summa, .304; Pete Scott, .304, and Ben Sankey, .222.

WHEN PITTSBURGH STAGED the A. A. U. national track and field championships in 1930, the big carnival fizzled financially, but this city isn't the only place where meets of that size prove flops at the gate. The recent I. C. 4-A. meet at Berkeley, Cal., was another financial bust, though the coast is supposed to be a hotbed of track interest. To get the games, the University of California built a new track, guaranteed $45,000, and Southern California and Stanford added $10,000 apiece. They were to get this $65,000 back at the gate, but they didn't. The receipts totaled only $35,000 for the two days. University of California had the glory of staging the meet, but Stanford and Southern California made a sporting gesture when, instead of standing pat on the $10,000 each had guaranteed, they decided to split the deficit three ways, share and share alike.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY football or basketball coaches as to changes in the rules or regulations of their respective games are usually accepted without question and written into the codes. But it isn't that way in track, Dink Templeton, Stanford coach, complains. He says if the coaches recommend something, the I. C. 4-A. moguls merely pigeonhole it.

Templeton refers particularly to one of his pet hobbies—starting blocks for running races. Three years ago, at Templeton's urging, the coaches voted to legalize starting blocks, but Gus Kirby, head of the I. C. 4-A., disregarded the action, and the matter never even came to a ballot in the upper councils.

WHILE BENNY LEONARD prepares for his bout with Paulie Walker at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, Ray Arcel, who started Benny on the conditioning campaign that led to the former lightweight champion's come-back, predicts that on this occasion Leonard will prove beyond question that he is ready for a match of real importance.

"Leonard is the miracle man of the boxing game," Arcel declares, and insists that he isn't ballyhooing the show. "He has accomplished something at which so many others have failed. Clean living and the determination to get there—that's the keynote to his success in making a comeback."

William Woodward

THE STORY OF the late Phar Lap isn't the only one showing the extent to which early estimates of a horse's value and possibilities may be wrong. William Woodward's Faireno presents another instance. He came up from a selling plater to a Belmont winner and claimant of the 3-year-old championship of 1932. After a victory in an overnight race at a winter meeting of 1931, Faireno was entered in a selling race to be sold for $6,000. Evidently he didn't look worth even that price, for nobody offered to buy him. But he went on to win $16,595 last year, and this season, after being kept out of the early stakes, he has won the Belmont, the Shevlin and the Dwyer, to run his total earnings up to $102,765.

Sammy Dorfman, New York Jewish lightweight, is writing one down in his little book of experience today. It's all about a sad time he had at Greenlee Field last night when he was booked for one fight, fought three, lost them all, and wound up having his purse withheld pending action by the boxing commission.

There doesn't seem to be much sense to this, and there really isn't. Just another case of having things all messed up, with the officials not certain about just what they should do and the inevitable riot resulting as a result of the fatal moments of indecision. It required the efforts of more than a half-dozen policemen to put down the disorder.

BOUT STOPPED TWICE

Dorfman was in with Charley Baxter, local lightweight, and suffered a badly cut and almost closed left eye and dented nose, and was knocked down cleanly by a right to the jaw in the third round, and, by the end of the fourth round, was such a gory sight that Referee Al Grayber went to his corner to see about stopping the bout. Dorfman protested and Grayber gave his seconds a chance to close the cuts. At the end of the fifth round, he took another look and called it off to save Dorfman from further punishment, if not a clean-cut knockout.

Dorfman put on a stormy scene, along with his seconds, and then Grayber remembered that the referees are instructed to call in the commission doctor to pass on cuts. He called for the doctor, and, by the time the latter got up into the far corner, the whistle sounded for the next round to begin. The timekeeper hesitated to ring the bell, remembering a similar occasion in the second Jackie Fields-Jimmy Belmont fight at Motor Square Garden, and asked for authority to do so, which finally was granted with the fans yelling at him to hit the gong.

FREE-FOR-ALL IN RING

When Dorfman heard the bell, he pushed aside the referee and

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE SKYSCRAPERS OF THE DESERT—Hadramout, a valley about 300 miles long running parallel to the south coast of Arabia, has a very ancient history and is identical with the Hazrmavth (Yard of Death) of the Bible. Shibam, the chief town, is believed to be the native city of Queen Balkhis, who, under the name of the Queen of Sheba, visited King Solomon in 950 B. C. The district is extremely isolated due to the impassability of the desert of Rub al Khali. As one approaches Shibam one is struck by the curious appearance of the city's skyline, suggesting that of an American metropolis. Tall houses, very high and narrow, and built out of mud brick, dot the landscape. Some of these houses were built 20 centuries before New York was heard of. It was the need for protection that made the ancient Sabeabs construct houses 10 stories high. The feat of designing mud brick structures to withstand the weight of 10 stories is a detail as amazing as it is inexplicable.

CRITICS SELECT LIKELY CHAMPS

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Head Coach American Olympic Team.
(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

PALO ALTO, Cal., July 14.—It is my conclusion that there will be quite a few upsets in the games that will be staged here tomorrow and Saturday in the final tests for membership on the American Olympic team.

Before coming here I felt that there might be record smashing performances on the track. This feeling has been dissipated by two factors. One is that there is almost a constant breeze blowing directly at the runners and the second is the condition of the track. It was chopped up recently following some building in the Sstanford Stadium and then was plowed. The result is a soft track and there is little hope for speedy performances.

The field men, however, are not handicapped, and with so many really great athletes in action in all the events it is quite possible that some of the existing marks may be shattered.

Herewith I am presenting the consensus opinion of coaches and others who are students of track and field events as to the outcome of the contests. These conclusions were arrived at by taking into consideration the condition of the athletes, their best marks, their experience and their ability when tested by fierce competition.

TROPHIES FOR LEGION NINES

CHAIRMAN BEN GIFFEN INSPECTS CHAMPIONSHIP AWARDS FOR STATE TOURNEY

These handsome trophies will go to the championship teams in the annual American Legion junior baseball tournament in Pennsylvania this year. They have just arrived here in care of Ben H. Giffen, state chairman of the tournament. The large trophy is the Thomas S. Shibe award and will go to the legion post sponsoring the winner of the state title. The three smaller cups go to the winners of the Eastern, Central and Western sections of the state. The tournament finals will be played August 8, 9 and 10. The ailing Pirates were still groggy this morning from a couple of left hooks delivered yesterday by Eddie Brandt and Tom Zachary, in whose corners Bill McKechnie directed in a very able manner. Statistics and other arguments to the contrary, notwithstanding, Skipper Bill is of the opinion left-handers have the advantage over the Oaklanders, and his proof yesterday was convincing.

Bill McKechnie

The Braves came to town in no mood for fooling. They had been scalped three times in four days in Chicago and were anxious to make somebody suffer. Winning both ends of a bargain bill with the league-leading Pirates, they were able to kill at least two birds with a stone, probably three. The Tribe moved to within two and one-half games of the leaders and McKechnie's entry is but half a step out of second place.

SWIFT TO HURL

The Braves and Buccos will meet in a single fray this afternoon for the benefit of the women folks. The occasion is Ladies' Day. Bill Swift, one of the most impressive of the Pittsburgh hurlers, is due to twirl for the home team. Harry Seibold is ready to work for the enemy.

The Pirates do not resemble their first-place selves with Pie Traynor and Lloyd Waner on the sidelines. Traynor's bad hand is likely to keep him out again today, while the centerfielder is reported

GUNN, BRAND VICTORS IN STATE AMATEUR

By TOM BIRKS

Chris Brinke, of Philadelphia, created a sensation and established himself as a prime title favorite by shaving three strokes from the Oakmont Country Club's generally impregnable par in swamping Jack Benson, of the South Hills Country Club, 9 and 7, in the first round of match play in the Pennsylvania state amateur golf championship there today.

Holing out all putts, Brinke breezed out in 35, two under par, to lead the local star by eight holes at the turn, and he clinched the decision by winning the eleventh with a birdie 3 after halving the tenth in par 4. Benson, although he shot fair golf, was unable to win a single hole and was able to halve only two.

CONSISTENT WINNER

Brinke quit Detroit to make his home in Philadelphia last October. While in Detroit he won the Michigan state amateur crown and the Detroit city title. Shortly before coming here he won the Huntingdon Valley title, and, while playing as a member of a Louisville club, a few years ago, he won the Kentucky state title four times, three of his victories coming in succession.

Brinke's score today was only two strokes above the competitive record for the first 11 holes at Oakmont. His card:

Out.. 5 3 4 5 4 4 3 3 4—35
In ... 4 3

Joe Royston, of Highland, and J. T. Lappan, of the Field Club, were the only other first-round victors to win by comfortable margins.

MEDALIST ADVANCES

Will Gunn, Jr., of Philadelphia, who won the qualifying medal yesterday with a 36-hole score of 149, advanced into the second round at the expense of Denny St. Clair, of Indiana, 2 and 1. Trailing, 4 down, at the turn, St. Clair electrified the gallery by winning the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth holes, but he was not able to maintain the fast pace and was eliminated on the seventeenth green.

Fred Brand, Jr., staged a great comeback in defeating Fred Weppner, Stanton Heights ace, 2 and 1. Brand was 2 down after 11 holes, but he won the twelfth with a birdie, and forged to the front when Weppner was unable to match his pars on the fifteenth and sixteenth.

BABCOCK BEATEN

J. Wood Platt also won to give Philadelphia three representatives in the second round, and in the battle of Western Pennsylvania links giants Maurice Le Bosquet, of Highland, put out Ray Babcock, of Oakmont, 2 up.

W. S. Critchlow, of Titusville, defaulted to George Flinn, Jr., of Oakmont, after sustaining slight injuries in an automobile accident last night.

J. T. Lappan, Field Club, defeated J. W. Wyman, Highland, 4 and 2.
C. Brinke, Philadelphia, defeated Jack Benson, South Hills, 9 and 7.
G. Flinn, Jr., Oakmont, defeated W. S. Critchlow, by default.
Fred Brand, Jr., Shannopin, defeated Fred Weppner, Stanton Heights, 2 and 1.
J. Wood Platt, Philadelphia, defeated Dr. Stanger, Highland, 2 up.

W. H. Hyde, Ridgway, defeated H. F. Miller, Aliquippa, 3 and 2.
L. Heller, Greensburg, defeated J. L. Marks, Jr., Oakmont, 2 and 1.
E. M. McLeod, Washington, Pa., defeated R. Thompson, Oakmont, 2 up.
W. J. Marks, Oakmont, defeated J. Ramsey, Highland, 2 up.
W. R. Neuman, Edgewood, defeated Regis Woolf, Highland, 2 up.
R. C. Long, Oakmont, defeated W. J. Platt, Philadelphia, 1 up.
R. Bouicek, Highland, defeated H. C. Fownes, II, Oakmont, 2 and 1.
J. C. Ball, Uniontown, defeated J. M. Murray, Grove City, 1 up.

THIRD SIXTEEN.

D. E. Mitchell, Oakmont, defeated Bruce Miller, St. Clair, 3 and 2.
Henry Oliver, Jr., Allegheny, defeated Leon Goss, Bedford Springs, by default.
J. Lloyd Bever, Jr., Philadelphia, defeated L. Semans, Uniontown, 6 and 5.
G. McClure, Chartiers Heights, defeated J. Robertshaw, Greensburg, 8 and 7.
J. H. Euwer, Alcoma, defeated R. A. Lyne, Fox Chapel, 5 and 4.
F. X. Totten, Stanton Heights, defeated Joe Totten, Santon Heights, 3 and 1.
Dr. Ralston, Oakmont, defeated Bert Parker, Highland, 2 up.
P. Gundelfinger, Montour, defeated J. W. Gitt, York, Pa., 3 and 1.

This evening, at Bob-O-Link driving range, Pete O'Hara, the Westmoreland wizard, will give a driving exhibition. He also will demonstrate the art of iron play.

Clifford Saunders, South Hills Country Club junior member, yesterday made a hole in one on the 145-yard No. 4 hole.

Nick A'trock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Over in the National League life is just a roulette wheel, except in Cincinnati, where it's just a bowl of razzberries. And it begins to look like the Brooklyns and Giants had been nominated for the zero and double-zero of the pennant race.

Nick Altrock

But 1932 will go down as the year of "What Was the Matter With the Giants?" The answers are still coming in, but the silver cup has bee awarded to the explanation that they aren't winning enough games.

OLSEN NAMED PITT COACH

By JESS CARVER

Pitt has a brand new track and field coach. He is Carl Olsen, who comes here from Froebel High School of Gary, Ind., to take the place of Frank Shea. Shea, head coach at Pitt since 1926, has resigned and will devote more time to his law practice, but he'll be on hand to assist Olsen if needed.

Carl Olsen

Olsen comes to Pitt with a pip of a record. He's been physical director and track coach at Froebel High since 1922. Previous to that, he was a physical instructor in the United States Army and director of industrial athletics for the Carnegie Steel Company at Homestead.

During his term at Feoebel, never once did one of his teams lose an outdoor meet and they captured the only two indoor affairs in which they participated. He turned out Indiana state championship outfits in '26, '27, '28, '29, '30, '31 and '32. In 1928, his team finished second in the National Interscholastics and came back to win the national crown in '29. Last year, in capturing its fifth consecutive state banner, Froebel set a new record for consecutive victories, compiled the highest point total ever recorded for the Indiana championships, 53¼ points, and hung up three new records on a slow track.

Olsen will be a full-time member of the Pitt faculty. He will hold an assistant professorship in the school of physical education. James Potts will serve as his regular assistant.

Considering the class of competition he was forced to compete against, Shea's record at Pitt has been okey. His teams won 15 dual meets and lost 27, but he developed individual stars of the caliber of Pete Bowen, Vic Pickard, Don Gwinn, Tiny Linn, Gibby Welch, Ted Corbett, Everette Utterback and Ken Webican. Gwinn was a member of the 1928 U. S. Olympic team as a hammer tosser and Pickard of the Canadian Olympic squad as a pole vaulter. Bowen will seek tomorrow and Saturday to win a place on the American team as a 400-meters contestant for the coming Olympics.

Singing Numbers Feature Seals' Bill

Singing by the Waynesburg College Quartet and Herbert M. (Hub) Rinehart, local tennis player, featured the weekly radio broadcast of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE last night. With Miss Marian Salmon at the piano, four numbers were offered.

Herb McGee did the announcing and Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, acted as master of ceremonies.

Skipper Bill appears to have pulled a fast one on his fellow-townsmen yesterday in throwing Eddie Brandt at the Bucs. Eddie was supposed to be nursing a case of sinus trouble and he had not pitched for two weeks. He was far from an invalid as he bobbed up to throw a seven-hit game which resulted in a 5-to-1 victory for his team. Tom Zachary was given fine offensive support in the second game and the Braves won this affair, 10 to 5.

BUC HURLERS POUNDED

Larry French and Leon Chagnon were treated roughly as they performed on the slab for the Pirates. French started the prelude, but was ineffective. Chagnon did not get a chance to light in the nightcap. Padden batted for Larry in the sixth inning of the opener, Spencer going to the mound. Spencer made way for Traynor at the plate in the eighth and Ery Brame finished.

The twilight contest was a walkaway for the Braves from the start. The Braves nicked Chagnon for four runs in two rounds, Hargrave's homer into the stands being a big part of the drive. The Tribe profited by some loose work in the Pirate infield in the fourth when they scored four runs to put the game on the ice.

Tony Piet played through the long ordeal with a badly cut face. Tony's lips were torn in his collision with Comorosky on the previous day. He could not partake of solid food, yet he remained in the game. Were Piet not of perfect habits off the field he probably would be in a hospital, what with bruises, black and blue spots and cuts.

LOW PRICE?

Yes—but that's not all

6 "PLIES"?

You can count six layers of cord here, but the first two under the tread in this tire, (or in any so-called "six-ply" tire built this way) do not run from bead to bead. Some tire-makers count these as "plies," but they are really "breaker strips," so we call them that

You can get more miles, more safety, more comfort and more quality for your money than you ever got in a tire before—at prices lower than you ever paid in any past summer in history.

GRIMES FAILS CUBS

VETERAN STAR DROPS FIFTH IN ROW

Associated Press

That heroic figure of the last world series, Burleigh Grimes, must have been a source of the keenest disappointment to Rogers Hornsby the last few months.

The Cub manager apparently made the smartest kind of a move when he acquired Grimes in the famous deal that sent Hack Wilson on his way. But the once great spitballer has failed to produce, and it is only because Lonnie Warneke, the Arkansas youngster, has come through so spectacularly that the Cubs are where they are today.

Grimes thus far has been able to win only four for Hornsby and has lost eight. The veteran right-hander started well and it looked for a time that he was set for a big year, but something slipped about a month ago and he has been of practically no value since.

Grimes' inability to regain his stride cost the Cubs a 5-to-4 defeat by Brooklyn yesterday. The defeat kept the Cubs from climbing within a single game of the league leaders.

RIOT ATTENDS LOCAL BOUTS

doctor and his seconds and dashed out to the center of the ring to resume fighting. Grayber waited for him to receive a few more punches and then moved in front of him and pushed him away toward his corner, whereupon Dorfman completely lost his head, thinking only of his reputation and the ignominy of a knockout defeat. He struggled to get back at Baxter, and, when Grayber insisted upon herding him into his own corner, he began to punch at the latter. That was fight No. 2 for him.

Grayber finally got Sammy planted, but as he began to walk over to Baxter's corner, Dorfman followed him out to midring and resumed the assault. By this time the police were beginning to sift into the ring. Two of them grabbed Dorfman, and, when he resisted, the others joined in and they soon had him surrounded in his corner, where he lost fight No. 3. He said afterward he was sorry about the scene, but continued to insist that the bout should not have been stopped because of the condition of his eye.

RANDALL STOPS GROVE

Baxter, scaling only 131 pounds, against 136¾ for Dorfman, who was almost two pounds overweight, fought a smart bout, sending straight, cutting punches to the head and body while Sammy was hooking and swinging. Dorfman was unable to show to his usual good advantage at any stage of the bout, although he was aggressive. It was a good win for Baxter, his seventieth victory and forty-second knockout in 74 bouts. He is just past 20 years.

The show was a succession of thrills, the best yet held in the Hillarena. Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight, of Elizabeth, was too smart and hit too hard for Davy Grove, of the North Side, and won by a technical knockout at the start of the seventh round, when Referee Jack Henderson halted the scheduled 10-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, with Grove helpless in his own corner, his back to Randall, after the bell had saved him from a decisive knockout at the count of seven in the preceding round and a light left hook had dropped him again as he was pushed off his stool, still in a daze, for the next session. Grove pulled himself up on the ropes at seven and was out on his feet when the end came. Randall also had floored him for eight with a right to the jaw in the second round.

MOSE BUTCH WINS

Mose Butch, Oakland southpaw bantamweight, defeated a smart, rangy opponent in Charley Van Reeden, of Florida, in the first 10-rounder, a hard fight, with Van Reeden crossing many good hard rights to the jaw and sinking heavy punches to the body. Mose was the aggressor, however, and refrained from clinching, one of Van Reeden's faults.

Petey Sherman, of the East End, upset the dope by coming from behind to outbox and outfight Mickey O'Brien, North Braddock lightweight in the six-round opener, scoring a knockdown for a count of nine to boot in the second round.

The show, at reduced prices, drew a fair-sized crowd. Billy Jones and Natie Brown box the windup at the Hill arena next Wednesday night, with Sam Weiss and Sunny Jim McVey in the eight-round semi-final.

Between Rounds

Sammy Paris, Hill bantamweight, hopes to be able to defeat Willie Davies in their 10-round main bout at Fairmont, W. Va., tonight. He reports himself in good shape for the test.

Paul Monar, Homestead amateur boxer, who was to make the trip to the Olympic games, has remained behind because of failure to raise the necessary expenses and is ready to turn professional.

INTERCITY GAME HERE

An inter-city baseball game between Hungarian teams is scheduled at Burgwin Park next Sunday afternoon. It will bring together the Vesprovej A. A. teams of Pittsburgh and Detroit in league competition. Pittsburgh already has played Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis and is leading the circuit.

Same Old Rabbit Here

"THANK YE, FANS . . . . HERE'S A LITTLE BOW"

SUIT ECHOES FED LEAGUE

An echo of the breaking up of the Federal League in 1918 was heard in a suit filed yesterday in Common Pleas Court by George S. Ward, now of Cuba, former owner of the Brooklyn Federal League club, seeking to recover unmatured notes of $40,000 and a $2,192.24 share of a note paid. The suit is an outgrowth of the agreement whereby the National and American Leagues procured the abandonment of the "third major league," and was filed against William D. Gordon, Secretary of Banking, in possession of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, which company was trustee endorser and possessed the notes solely as courtesy agent. The suit charged also that demand has been refused.

February 15, 1918, the Federal League was induced to quit the game by the two major leagues in consideration of a number of promissory notes payable year by year, and the entire series of American League notes have been paid, the suit alleged.

It said four National League notes, signed by John K. Tener, then president, for $10,000 each, without interest, mature in February, 1933, 1934, 1935 and 1936. One paid in February last, provided a share of $2,192.24 for Ward, the suit said, and for this sum and the unmatured notes the suit asked a decree for delivery to him.

The arrangement for custody of the notes was made in the liquidation of the Federal League by Ward and the estate of his brother, Robert B. Ward, the suit said. It was filed by Attorney R. T. M. McCready.

Guy June Sets New Oval Record

Guy June, crack local trotter, established an all-time record for the mile at Schenley Oval yesterday afternoon in a special exhibition race against time in connection with the weekly program of the Schenley Matinee Club. He trotted the mile in 2.06¾, equaling marks set by other horses at Urbana and Elyria, O.

Goldie A. Lee Winder, Miss Silver Axworthy, Fred Ettawah and Clinton D scored victories in the five-event program.

Gledhill Beaten In Longwood Play

BROOKLINE, MASS., July 14. (AP.)—The tennis tournament for the historic Longwood Bowl lost its outstanding competitor yesterday when Dave Jones, of New York, defeated the top-seeded Keith Gledhill, of Los Angeles, 6-1, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, to enter the semi-finals against W. F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City.

Mrs. Vare, Miss Wall In Griscom Cup Final

EASTERN POINT, Conn., July 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, today won a 7-and-6 victory over Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, in a semi-final round match of the Griswold Cup tournament at Shenoscossett. Five times winner of this event, she equaled men's par for the 12 holes played. It was her third straight 7-and-6 win in the tourney.

Miss Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wiss., won the other semi-final match, 1 up, after a nip-and-tuck battle with Miss Katherine Bragaw, of West Orange, N. J. The final is scheduled tomorrow.

FEATURE TILT TODAY IN NET TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Paul Hicks and McCook Reed, slashing Edgewood combination and 1930 Western Pennsylvania doubles champions, battle Tom Robinson and Joe Dilworth, brilliant home club veterans, at 5:30 o'clock today in the lone contest on this afternoon's card of activity in the first annual Fox Chapel Golf Club turf court invitation doubles tennis tournament. The fracas will conclude quarter-final competition.

Sam Harbison, rangy ace of the Allegheny Country Club, and Charley Lockhart, Pittsburgh Golf Club crack, flashed feature of yesterday's milling by nudging out Dr. John O'Loughlin and his youthful brother, Billy, P. A. A. pair, 6-4, 7-9, 10-8, to crash the semi-final round.

Dr. Billy McElroy and Dr. Dave D'Loughlin, ranking Winged combine and 1931 West Penn premiers, attained the penultimate frame at expense of the A. C. C.-University Club outfit of Dave Gilmore and Frank White, 6-4, 6-3, while the Westmoreland County winners of a week ago, Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman, achieved like status by downing the Pittsburgh Golf Club contenders, Collie Burgwin and Joe Holmes, Jr., 6-3, 7-5.

Though definite plans have yet to be announced, it is understood that the Fox Chapel semi-finals will be held over until Saturday, with the final billed for Sunday.

Fields-Corbett Bout Again Is Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—(AP.)—The date for the twice scheduled San Francisco battle between Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, and Young Corbett, of Fresno, was uncertain today after Promoter Ancil Hoffman announced Fields had called off the August 27 date.

Hoffman said Fields had advised him by long distance telephone from Los Angeles he would be unable to meet Corbett in August because of eye trouble. A previous match was recently postponed for the same reason. Fields was quoted as saying he wanted "to be absolutely right" when he meets Corbett.

Cardinals' Deal Blocked by Landis

CHICAGO, July 14.—(AP.)—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis today disapproved the proposed optional transfer of Lee Cunningham, an infielder, by the St. Louis Cardinals to their Houston (Tex.) farm.

Cunningham has played on a Cardinal farm team for the last three seasons, and under the rules of the transfer the Cardinals must keep him on their staff, release him outright or give him a chance on another major league club by trade or sale.

Fight Results

STOCKS CLING TO RECENT ADVANCES

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—The securities markets clung tenaceously to their recent gains today, but for the moment at least, met with but limited success in efforts to extend them.

The stock list had to absorb profit-taking, and traders were inclined to pause, while waiting for further developments in commodities, and more definite information as to the adjournment of Congress.

A little hangover liquidation appeared in spots, particularly American Can, which sagged a point in moderately active trading. Opening gains of a point or so in a number of the leaders were largely lost in a morning sag, but a firmer tendency appeared during the middle of the day, when net gains of fractions to a point appeared in such issues as General Motors, American Telephone, Sears, Woolworth, Du Pont, Bendix, United Aircraft, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, United Fruit, Lehman Corporation, American Sugar, Johns-Manville, Liggett & Myers B, Consolidated Gas and others. Utilities were notably firm, and Peoples Gas had one of its wide moves, rising a number of points.

Bond dealers reported a fairly good reception for the $40,000,000 of new public utility bonds put upon the market, the largest in many weeks, and this undoubtedly helped the utility shares, in view of further financing which a number of these companies have to do, when conditions favor. This may have been a factor in the rise in Peoples Gas, which is one of the three principal units of the Insull group which has some financing to do shortly.

News of a character to stimulate the list further was meager. Banking quarters here were inclined to regard the new accord between France and England as constructive, inasmuch as it presumably indicated a united front in dealing with European problems of economic recovery. Lack of agreement between these two principal powers has been regarded by some quarters in Wall street as a particularly disturbing element in the European situation in recent years.

Some of the recent buying in the local securities markets has come from abroad, notably London. Houses with European connections reported that the buying had been of a scattered nature, and there had been little inclination to bid for stocks on advances. One house reported many more inquiries than actual buying orders. Yesterday's sharp rise in stocks, carrying the average through recent resistance levels on the upside, was apparently accomplished largely at the expense of shorts, but some quarters report that there has been a limited degree of real investment accumulation, and that some speculative leaders have started to discuss plans. The chief obstacle, apparently, is the extremely low level of corporate earnings, probably of further dividend slashing, and lack of prospect of immediate substantial improvement in business.

Bradstreet's weekly food index showed a gain for the fourth successive week, but some observers pointed out that it may take several more weeks, or even months, before it can be said with assurance that there has been a turn in commodities. Bar silver was up ¼ cent to 26⅞ cents an ounce.

COTTON EASY ON SELLING

NEW YORK, July 14.—Cotton futures opened steady, 2 higher to 2 lower, with a fair trade demand for the near positions and selling of the late months on continued favorable weather.

The initial demand, which included some buying here by Liverpool and a little business from the continent, was readily supplied and the market eased under further commission house selling and scattering liquidation. October contracts sold off from 5.93 to 5.84, with active months generally showing net declines of about 3 to 6 points at the end of the first half hour.

A favorable reading of the weather forecasts led to more selling later. Offerings were by no means heavy or aggressive, but demand was limited and prices worked gradually lower, with October selling off to 5.79c. The general list showed net declines of about 8 to 9 points at midday. The census report placing domestic consumption for June at 320,783 bales, against 453,901 for the same month last year was without apparent effect.

OVER-EMPHASIS PLACED ON POLITICS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 14.—The official opening of the presidential campaign necessarily has the effect of over-emphasizing in the public mind the effect of politics in the course of business.

However, inasmuch as the present breakdown is spiritual and philosophic, as well as purely economic, the two different schools of thought, as exemplified by President Hoover on the one hand, and by Gov. Roosevelt on the other, are likely to have more than routine effect on business. Nevertheless, it would be unfortunate if business managers should lay down and wait until November to let the politicians accomplish a duty which is largely theirs. Even now there is too much disposition to rely on "mamma" government, instead of tapping the infinite ingenuity and genius of the American business man.

Mr. Rukeyser

COURAGE NEEDED

Irrespective of political slogans the course of business depends primarily on the attitude of the 35,000,000 self-supporting Americans who are still more or less gainfully employed. The frightened consumer, who participates in a buyers' strike, unwittingly undermines the security of his own employment. On the other hand, the consumer who employs his purchasing power diffuses the opportunity for work. The purchase of a low-priced automobile, for example, is tantamount to a mandate giving 77 days' employment.

In view of the extraordinary deadlock, the government can serve in breaking the ice, but the real momentum for progress must come from greater courage on the part of consumers. Instead of further deflating personalities and institutions, public officials can be of service at this stage in stressing the promise of American life.

WEED OUT ABUSES

In keeping with this viewpoint, Marcus Nadler, New York University economist, participating in the University of Virginia round table, stressed the plus factors in American economic life. Instead of futilely viewing things with alarm, after the weak spots have been fully discounted at the market place, Mr. Nadler wisely observed:

"The capitalistic system is still the best economic system which the human brain has devised, but it must be shorn of the excessive greed for profits of the individual or the corporation and must be replaced by a sense of broad social responsibility to the entire community."

The reactionary who preaches a return to the "new era of 1929" is less genuinely conservative than the liberal who would save the foundations of strength in the system while consciously seeking to eliminate abuses.

Secretary Mills, stressing economic issues, challeneged Gov. Roosevelt to submit an economic plan. In due course, the Governor will meet the challenge. In past addresses, he has given an inkling of his conception, which will be sketched in greater detail in forthcoming speeches. I believe the business community will favorably receive not a few of the Roosevelt proposals, especially his concrete recommendations for rehabilitating railroad credit and for redistributing population in accordance with long term planning.

Pemberton Named Coast Oil Umpire

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—J. R. Pemberton, petroleum engineer and former executive of the Petroleum Securities Company, has been named umpire to direct California's oil production curtailment program. He succeeds Neal H. Anderson, who resigned last week.

His task will be to meet the ultimatum of K. R. Kingsburg, president of the Standard Oil Company of California, who threatened to again reduce the price of refinable crudes. Kingsburg charged violation of a recent agreement among producers to cut reduction in California oil fields to 476,700 barrels daily.

Shorts Are Warned On Dodging Taxes

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—Members of the New York Stock Exchange were warned today by exchange authorities against helping their customers evade the transfer tax on borrowed stocks by failing to deliver, instead of borrowing stocks to deliver upon short contracts.

The exchange said it had learned certain short sellers had instructed their brokers to fail to deliver instead of borrowing stocks, a practice which the exchange regarded as an attempt to evade the transfer tax. Members were ordered to make prompt deliveries of securities against any short sales.

DIED

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 14.—Domestic bonds of all classes today held well to the higher price range reached in their rally of this week. United States government obligations were again steady to firm. German government bonds braced themselves following their reaction of earlier in the week. French government issues were lower while United Kingdom, Norwegian and Polish bonds were steady.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows. 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 14.—A firm undertone prevailed in the Curb Market today, although early gains were eventually shaded.

NEW YOR

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets showed stronger, with slight change in quotations.

Car lot supplies were moderate with 345 cars on track. Arrivals included 3 cars apples, 1 bananas, 1 beans, 7 cabbage, 5 cantaloupes, 1 carrots, 5 cucumbers, 1 grapefruit, 6 lettuce, 2 onions, 2 oranges, 2 pear, 1 peppers, 29 potatoes, 2 strawberries, 1 sweet potatoes, 3 tomatoes, 4 watermelons and 1 mixed vegetables.

Lynn Has Lunch With Jennie, Who Explains Friendship With Rich Buyer

CHAPTER XXXI.

Lynn said delightedly, holding out her hand, "It was gorgeous. I can't thank you enough."

He replied coolly, smiling at her, "It was pleasant of you to come," and turned to Sarah.

Lynn, a little taken aback, watched them. Incalculable man! One moment he was your friend, dependable; you had only to reach out your hand for comfort. Nice, that feeling. The next second he was less than your friend, more than your friend—caressing eyes and disturbing voice. That frightened you a little, but was pleasurable. And then again, as now, he was a hundred miles removed from friendship, an acquaintance merely, courteous, a little bored.

He had said nothing to indicate when they would meet again. Lynn went in to work, a little hurt, more than a little puzzled.

But Dwight lingered in the corridor, detaining Sarah. "Will you lunch with me tomorrow?"

"Why?"

"You know why. We'll talk of—cabbages and kings."

"Well," asked Tom, appearing at Lynn's elbow toward luncheon time, "did you have a thrilling week-end—with Sarah?"

He was ugly. He had seen the car draw up; had seen the people in it.

DAY IS SPOILED

Lynn replied defiantly, "Very. And you needn't take that attitude. I was with Sarah and you know it!"

"Sarah and who else?"

"We were at Mr. Dwight's country place."

"Very jolly," admitted Tom, and departed without further word.

She had half expected it, of course. But—oh, everything was spoiled today. She slammed her desk drawer shut.

"Blue Monday?" asked the blond Miss Marple understandingly. "Well, I feel that way myself. Boy, I haven't got over Saturday night yet. Was that a party!"

Lynn rose. She didn't want to eat alone. She didn't want to be alone. Mara was no longer available, Mara, home with Bill, planning to go West. "Not that I want to go, Lynn, but what else can I do? He says—he says he's sorry."

Could people really be "sorry" and begin all over again with the memory of things they had said between them, terrible things, terrible memories?

Jennie? Perhaps Jennie would be free. Suddenly Lynn wanted Jennie and her astonishing acceptance of things as they are, her slangy, salutary cynicism which was not cynicism at all but a hard, poised ego. She would go upstairs and look for Jennie.

VISITS JENNIE

In the express elevator she rose, swift as a bird. She had been once or twice to Madame Fanchon's with urgent messages for Fanchon's "best" model. Now she went into the gray, ivory-paneled room, empty at this hour sacred to luncheon. Fanchon herself came out and frowned at her a moment, puzzled.

"If I might see Jennie?" asked Lynn, smiling.

"Oh, Jennie's little friend. But certainly!" She stepped to the curtains at the door of the model's room, thrust her dark birdlike head between them, spoke; and returned. "It is nearly autumn," she told Lynn; "we've been very busy."

Jennie came into the room. She looked. Lynn thought, somewhat taken aback. "Allo, keed," she greeted. "What's wrong?"

"Nothing. Jennie, have you had lunch?"

"Not yet."

"Come downstairs and eat with me. I want to talk to you."

"Oke," agreed Jennie.

Later, as they made their way toward the cafeteria, Jennie touched Lynn's arm.

"Not there. Let's go to the Gavarin," she suggested. "It's on me this time, and I've graduated."

"Maybe."

WORDS OF ADVICE

They went into the Gavarin and ordered. Jennie leaned back in her chair.

Lynn found herself talking furiously. Her quarrel with Tom—she did not mention the cause. "We just disagreed about something," the week-end. "Such fun, Jennie, such a perfectly grand place;" Dwight's subtly changed attitude; Tom's exhibition "barging into the room and calling me down!"

"Girl friend?"

"Sarah the Stately. Sure she hasn't been putting a bug in Dwight's ear on your account? Look here, was he all over the place about you, down there?"

"Of course not." But Lynn hesitated, colored. There had been, after all, an arm about her, a voice: "Sweet person."

"Hum!" said Jennie. "Don't get mixed up with him, that's all I have to offer. You steer clear. You'll make it up with Tom. Don't feel yourself falling in another direction, do you?" Her words were light, but her eyes were anxious.

"Make it two million. The first million pass so quickly," murmured Jennie. "Watch the traffic lights, Lynn; you aren't the type to cross against them."

"What do you mean, the type? Who is?" asked Lynn.

"I am," said Jennie, and turned her eyes away.

SHOWS LYNN JEWELS

"Look here," said Jennie, "I've been away for the week-end, too."

"Jennie!"

"Don't be an idiot!" Lynn advised her crossly. "Jennie, did you go to Atlantic City with—"

"I did. Meyer, Jake. I—he's not a bad guy," said Jennie wistfully, "and he's liberal. Suites. You know." She put her hand bag on the table, opened it and thrust her long hand inside. The hand came out again and dripped down on the sedate damask several glittering objects: a plain gold wedding ring; a linked bracelet of diamonds; a solitaire.

Lynn stared. "You're not—married?"

"No," answered Jennie; "be your age. Of course I'm not married. All that glitters is not wedding rings." She pushed the gold band aside disdainfully. "The usual scenery," she explained.

"But he isn't married," Lynn said helplessly. "He can perfectly well——"

AFRAID FOR JENNIE

"No, he can't. Money. His wife's money, tied up in the firm. When he marries, if he does, it will be someone they pick out for him. Eighth cousin, twice removed. Nothing doing. I'm a Gentile. Laugh that off. But they're orthodox, his wife's people. She knew," said Jennie, "when she died that she had him where she wanted him; in perhaps the next best place to the grave. I'd like you to know that he told me before I went. He's decent that way."

Lynn thought, I'm not shocked. I ought to be shocked, but I'm not. I'm afraid, that's all. For Jennie.

"Jennie, do you love him?" she asked.

"No," replied Jennie judiciously, "I don't love him. I like him. I like him a lot. I like his money. What it can buy. We made our bargain. I'll play square, see? No two-timing. I owe him that much, don't I?"

"Are you going to Chicago?" asked Lynn, sick at heart.

"Well, no. He has too much sense. I'll stay here; he'll come on once a month, maybe twice."

"I see." But she didn't. "Jennie," she cried, "why—why?"

"I'm not like you," Jennie told her somberly. "I don't give a hang for jobs. I haven't any ambition. The stage, modeling, all the rest, a way of earning my way. As for marriage, I haven't any ambition in that direction, either. You knew about Slim. I'm not saying I didn't like him, but I had sense enough to quit seeing him. As a housewife with a couple of kids and an electric washing machine I'd be a flop.

"I can't help it if I was born with that breakfast-in-bed feeling, can I? I don't want to do anything but eat three, or maybe four square meals a day and have good clothes and facials and a decent apartment somewhere. All right, say it, I might get those things by myself. Don't be dumb! I wouldn't last ten days on any job but the one I have now and that wouldn't buy birdseed, let alone a gilded cage.

"Men? If there are any men wandering around with money looking for a nice blond wife, I haven't seen 'em. Now and then a guy like Slim comes along, all set to go to the minister. That's something else again. He'd hate me in a year; I'd hate him in a month. If you've got what people call character and ambition, I suppose it pays to stay what people call good. If you haven't, it doesn't. Not, at least, as far as I'm concerned."

"I don't know. I suppose so. Why not? I'll be safe," said Jennie.

"No."

"Yes. I'll make it my business to be, see! Salt away as much as I can. A girl's a fool who doesn't." After a minute she questioned, "I won't be seeing much of you, I suppose?"

"Why not?" asked Lynn indignantly.

"Tom. That's why."

"Oh, Tom! Do you think I'd tell Tom?"

"No, but he'll find out. Kid, if he does, give me the gate. You have to play safe, too. I'll understand," said Jennie with the closest approach to sentiment Lynn had ever seen in her.

Lynn's eyes were misty.

Jennie said, "I'll pull out of the flat, of course. I'll pay my share there until you find someone to go in with you. That's only right."

"Jennie, I couldn't—It would not be fair. Besides—" Lynn floundered.

"You don't want to have Jake's money helping pay your rent?" asked Jennie shrewdly. "Well, it won't. I'll pay my share out of my earnings, as usual."

Synopsis

Lynn Harding, young and pretty clerk in the Sea Coast Bank and Trust Company, loves Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the bank's vice presidents. They cannot marry on Tom's salary, so Lynn plans to hold her position. She learns, however, that the bank does not want married women. She seeks the aid of David Dwight, prominent lawyer, whom she met through Sarah Dennet, her chief at the bank. Dwight had been Sarah's sweetheart years before, but gave her up to marry wealth. David, attracted by Lynn, offers her a position, but due to Tom's objection, Lynn rejects it. Later, Tom informs Lynn he has an opportunity to become rich by taking advantage of secret information relative to the bank's merger and buying stock. Lynn disapproves on the ground that it is dishonest and Tom reluctantly promises not to speculate. Shortly after, Tom is offered a position at a radio station. Anxious to tell Lynn, he asks if he might call only to learn that she is going away for the week-end with Sarah. Lynn and Sarah visit Dwight's place for the weekend. Dwight is very attentive to Lynn, Sarah pleads with him to let the girl alone.

Now Go On

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Cowboys and cowgirls of the Father Cox rodeo, which opens Monday afternoon at Exposition Park, North Side, will be hosts to the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club Monday when the members attend as a unit.

More than 100 cowboys and cowgirls, from all parts of the country, are already in Pittsburgh with their trick ropes and trained ponies. Canada Kid, who has won the title of "best all-around cowboy" for the past three years, is here to uphold that honor. Ken Luzley, of Montana, who was acclaimed champion at Madison Square Garden, New York, will also defend his honors, as will Frank Biron, of South Dakota, and Orville Gillman, of Texas.

OUTLAW HORSES

Riding outlaw horses was formerly a man's job, but today the cowgirls are just as proficient in this dangerous sport as the cowboys. Some concessions are made to the cowgirls, however, but they are very slight. The cowgirl is not required to "scratch" the horse with her spurs, as the cowboy, and the cowgirl who rides without hobbled stirrups is given a certain number of points before she starts her ride.

And speaking of the horses, this rodeo has genuine buckers. They are the real "outlaw" horses of the West, brought here from Montana, Arizona, Utah and Texas.

TICKETS TO BE GIVEN

So, boys and girls, when you attend the regular meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club Saturday you will be given a ticket that will admit you free to the Father Cox Rodeo Monday afternoon. Every youngster at some time or another has played "cowboy and Indian" and now here's your chance to see how these hard-riding, fast-roping men and women of the West really play. The "rodeo" will start at 2 o'clock and remember, Monday afternoon is the day for all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club. Let's all go, and enjoy the thrills of the West.

At the Enright Saturday Bill Zellor has arranged for a "pet" show for the youngsters with prizes for the "pets" judged the best. All members are eligible to compete and if you attend the meeting with your "pet" you are to use the stage door to avoid any confusion. Let's see how many youngsters in East Liberty have "pets."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Demands County Economy While He Blocks Delinquent Tax Collector Bill

Coyne charges that Allegheny County is wasteful in its expenditures. A five man legislative committee is being named with powers to subpena individuals and records to disclose just what has happened to taxpayers' funds. The plan appears to be noble in motive. It is quite possible that such an investigation might do some good. We have no complaint to make against an investigation which is honestly and sincerely leveled at eliminating wasteful public expenditure.

But Coyne's affiliations are so well known and his actions in other directions where economies are concerned are so obvious that he will find it difficult to play the part of the great crusader without hearing at least a few bronx cheers from the by-standers.

On the same day that newspapers carried the latest report on the Coyne investigation of county expenditures, they also had two other peculiarly significant stories:

1. The Mansfield Bill to abolish the delinquent tax collector is likely to be shelved long enough to prevent its passage during the present special session of the Legislature.

2. Commissioner Charles C. McGovern declared that more than $2,000,000 has been saved during the past six months by elimination of political parasites, drones and pensioners from the county payroll and that further reductions will be made.

The abolition of the delinquent tax collector will result in an estimated saving of about $100,000 yearly to tax payers. It has been shown that the increase in the poor tax levy for 1932 will swell the revenues of the delinquent tax collector about $25,000.

Coyne happens to be the person directly responsible for attempts to sidetrack the measure to take the collection of delinquent taxes out of the commission class of jobs. Coyne's political animosities and friendships readily explain his interest in economy in one case and his interest in preserving a fat political job in the other case.

New System Needed

City Does Not Make Concerted Effort to Dispose of Delinquent Tax Property.

Pittsburgh is hard up. Slumping tax receipts and extraordinary expenses to provide relief work have placed a difficult problem on the shoulders of the administration. In an editorial yesterday the Sun-Telegraph declared that many ways could be shown by which the city could make large savings without serious inconvenience to its citizens. Here is one way:

Thousands of parcels of real estate have been taken by the city for taxes. Most of these are still held by the city. No systematic effort has been made to sell the properties and get them back into the tax producing columns. The city has no accurate list of properties taken on city tax liens. No list has been prepared since 1929. But this property is estimated to have a valuation of nearly $1,000,000.

The city is subject to a double loss through neglect in disposing of this property. First of all, it suffers a delay in collecting sums against accumulated back taxes at a time when the municipal government is particularly in need of funds. Second, this property does not appear in the tax columns while the city is holding it and making no effort to dispose of it to private holders.

This is only one example of flagrant inefficiency in handling city affairs. Waste and inefficiency always are deplorable. But they border on criminal negligence when a financial crisis of the first magnitude is but a short distance from us.

Mothers' Assistance Hit

Many Additional Families Must Be Dropped If Appropriation Is Decreased.

Cutting relief to provide relief, or borrowing from Peter to pay Paul, appears to be the way it is working out in the case of the Mothers' Assistance Fund, the board of which has announced the difficulties that will confront it if further cut in appropriation is made. The possibility of dropping 515 families from the list is one of the things pointed out by Mrs. Marcus Spiro, president of the board.

The fund, provided by both state and county, never has been adequate to care for all cases, and at a time when it ministered to 1,178 families there were 660 others eligible but unable to be assisted because the funds were not sufficiently ample. Because of lack of means to care for them 210 families recently have been dropped.

The saddest part of depression is that the weakest—mothers and children—appear to suffer the heaviest blows of misfortune. Since they will have to be cared for in some manner, in any event, it seems unwise to disturb the plan under which they have been assisted in the past.

'Meaning Well Feebly?'

Gov. Carlton, of Florida, is evidently one of those public officials whom the late Theodore Roosevelt described as "MEANING WELL FEEBLY."

His indolent conclusion, in the face of the revealed brutality of the prison guards in the Maillefert case, that "as a whole, conditions (in the Florida prison camps) are above the average and excellent," is nothing short of a refusal on the part of Florida's chief executive to perform his duty.

His admission that he has taken NO OFFICIAL ACTION, and the inference that he does not contemplate doing so, place a stigma upon the state of Florida almost as grave as the conditions which have led to the INDICTMENT OF THE TWO CONVICT GUARDS AT THE SUNBEAM CAMP FOR MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

2.—Adoption of 5 per cent sales tax and reduction in income taxes, releasing income to finance industry.

3.—Immediate modification of the Volstead Act, permitting light wines and beers, reviving industry and employment, providing government income, ending criminal racketeering and restoring American personal liberty.

Such a Difference!

Our student of arithmetic
Seems curiously dumb
When called on to subtract and balks
Before that simple sum.

But if he has a chance to add,
He grabs the chalk with zest,
For when addition is the task
Our student's at his best!

"I get a "kick' out of your column," writes D——, of Baltimore, "but you take too much for granted. I am only a mere male, but I can analyze any woman, and let you know just what is in her emotional make-up—just what attracted her to a certain man and why she can't get him to reciprocate."

* * *

Wish I had you here beside my desk with my Tresaurus, Mr. D—. You could save me a lot of headaches. That's something every girl wants to know!

"I'm an old bachelor—nearly 29—and still looking for 'that One Girl,'" sighs B. H. Watch your step, Boy! Thirty is the marrying age—and you are steering for the rocks!

"I knew a man who almost suffered arm-dislocation patting himself on the back, because someone called him 'a typical married man.' But what IS a typical married man?" asks L. H. M.

* * *

Usually, a man who keeps his wife's picture on his office desk, to remind him that he's married—and doesn't need a string tied around his finger.

"Why do you keep the women on the pan?" demands Miss Anonymous. "Women have had quite a battle to get an even break in this man-made world!" added Mrs. R. W.

And Mr. Anonymous rejoins with, "You, a female, should be the last person in the world to talk about the male. Where would YOU be, but for the male, who has made all the great discoveries and inventions? I consider myself better than any woman alive."

Camarade! Camarade! But there are only TWO sexes, dear hearts! And this column is co-educational.

But Miss V. O. J., of California, soothes the troubled spirit with, "I almost got up and shocked this neighborhood by giving a whole brass band full of loud hurrahs, tonight, when I read your article on these modern Don Juans! Never was a truer word written!"

And A. G. Reich, of Detroit, brightens life for us with this epigram: "Give a woman her choice between two men and she might pick the better one; but give her her choice among 50, and she'll surely pick the worst."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 14.—Chinatown tong men are not fearing the bark of sawed-off shotguns—at least for a while. The hatchet men no longer strap deadly missiles inside flopping sleeves. Tongs have forgotten hatreds in a common woe—disaster in their native land.

The truce is world-wide and funds once collected for killings amongst themselves are now diverted to the starving and stricken at home. Old enemy chieftains are fraternizing in the fan-tan parlors. Two of the tong chiefs, long at war, dined openly in the Port Arthur on a recent night.

No matter how strict the vigilance, Chinatown's streets used to run red at least once a year. Uprisings always came mysteriously out of a sudden calm. Streets in the twinkling of an eye would be utterly desolated and the eerie stillness would burst into noisy bedlam.

When police arrived several bodies would be stretched in areaways. Questioning would result in the usual bland indifference. Like Occidental gangs, the tongs never talk. In the innumerable murderous outbreaks, the police never found a single clue.

Today, the Chinese hatred is directed solely toward Japanese. Chinese-American newspapers print scathing denouncements daily. Passionate pleas are made to those who are able to return to China and help her in what is regarded as the last stand.

In a magazine essay recently, I tried to pay tender tribute to the grandmothers of the world, including my own, who "raised" me. So far I have received three disgusting letters from professed Freudians who see in my grandmotherly devotion a psychopathic perplexity. I cannot grasp the abstruse reasonings of the Freudians, with patter of complexes and defense-mechanisms, but I think Grandma, with a disgusted "Lame, poo!" would classify them as "loose talking' nit-wits."

One, in a rambling locution, jittered: "You will probably not quite understand why what you described as the puffity-pocket in Grandma's dress interested you." Don't be redic! From it I swiped pennies to buy strips of sugared cocoanut flag candy at Mr. Ford's grocery.

* * *

Perhaps Freudians might juggle the raison d'etre for my moronic and perhaps sadistic interest in an 84-day marathon dance. I dropped in at one of the Jack Curley grinds on Washington Heights somewhat in the pontifical manner Mrs. Astor might assume at a shin-down at Nigger Mike Salter's. But I returned nine successive evenings, absorbed by struggles of the Leaping Hedlunds, the "sweetheart couple" from Minneapolis, tragic Ruth Phillips with the Madonna head-tilt and her tanned Miami Apollo, Archie Gayer. Also the stolid, cow-eyed Joe Schmick, and Marion Gordon, a bride-to-be, dancing to furnish her South Side Chicago flat. And I confess to a slight choke beholding the superb sportsmanship of the bright-eyed Italian, Larry De Carrado, and the Swedish Hilda Ludwig. During the final sprints, Larry and Hilda were in easy reach of the $1,000 prize—clinching an economic independence they had never known—but they refused to take advantage of Archie Gayer, growing an apoplectic purple from choking on gum. Also, I remained until 4 a. m. the final night to see Larry and Hilda, twirling for six hours without changing dance holds, win and slowly sink to the floor in dead sleep.

It's probably of ancient vintage, but I just saw it near Columbia. A window card in a shabby auto repair shop read: "No business as usual."

* * *

Columbia, of course, is a landscaped arcadia with cloistered walks, sundry locusta and shine of cheery simplicity. But I am told its most fascinating haunt is a neighborhood movie where students razz the talkies. Their lines offer a far better show than the screen play. Or at least they think so.

* * *

In the Columbia area are cubicle lunchrooms with a pink fly netting tug of the depot short-order places—profusely cinnamoned apple pie, milk in thick glasses, etc. I stopped in at one, selected two doughnuts on a plate and rather hoped to be taken for a collegiate. The counterman punctured that conceit neatly with: "Anything else, Uncle?"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Often you wish you'd been born at some other time—some more exciting time, when things were really happening.

You go to the movies, and you see the covered wagons rolling over the prairies; watch the pioneers chasing the buffalo herd, fighting Indians. You thrill. Your very toe nails wriggle with envy. How you wish you could have been a pioneer!

You read about the early Romans, and the terrible and magnificent pictures unroll before your imagination. You see scenes of splendor and horror, slaves following after chariot wheels, women and children thrown to tigers, and drunken men, wreathed in flowers wading through blood.

"Ah," you sigh, "those were the days. If I could have been a Roman!"

And then, perhaps, you go to church, and the same old envy goes with you, for from the pulpit rise other visions, remote and noble. Heroic men battling through wilderness to save souls. Saintly men going into exile to share a living hell with tortured bodies. Tears stream down your cheeks. You feel a great ache and a great resentment. If only you could have gone on such a glorious pilgrimage!

But wait a minute!

You look with wistful eyes on the pages of history; you long for the terrible, wonderful days that have gone; you wish you could have taken part in such scenes.

THEN WHAT'S HOLDING YOU?

These days, too, are "pages of history"—as wonderful, as terrible, as full of adventure and noble crusade as any days that have gone.

And you can share that adventure. You can take part in that crusade—IF YOU WISH.

AND IF YOU AREN'T LIVING HISTORY NOW, IT'S YOUR OWN BAD LUCK.

The covered wagons are rolling today, just as they rolled in 1849. Unemployment and poverty have sent millions of people on the march, just as they sent them then; and every foot of that march is beset with hardship and danger and excitement, just as it was then.

There are savage pageants now, just as there were in the days of Rome. Poor, broken men go by, chained to the chariot wheels of heartless power.

Yes, more so!

NEVER BEFORE HAS THE WORLD BEEN GOING THROUGH SUCH TREMENDOUS CHANGES.

AND NEVER BEFORE HAS IT BEEN AS EASY FOR THE COMMON PERSON TO SEE IT ALL AND TAKE A PART IN IT ALL, IF HE HAS THE SENSE TO UNDERSTAND AND THE WILL TO DARE.

HAVE YOU? ARE YOU WILLING TO TAKE PART IN THE BIG SHOW? OR DO YOU JUST WANT TO SULK IN THE GALLERIES AND FEEL SORRY FOR YOURSELF?

Times are only exciting if you make them exciting.

There were people who were bored and peevish in the days of Rome—just as there are people who are bored and peevish today.

HISTORY'S ALL IN YOUR OWN EYE, STRANGER. IF YOU WANT TO "GET HOT"—IT'S UP TO YOU.

'Cancellation' Again; The Treasury Inquiry

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The drive now is on to convince the American people that since the allies c[illegible] days in Europe cannot extract anything more from Germany in the way of outrageous reparations, we must protect them from loss by taking over their debts and putting them on the backs of Americans.

Therefore we must take over the eleven billions of debts of these other nations or be considered "shylocks."

* * *

Reparations Have No Connection with Debts

When our debtors borrowed our money there was nothing said about reparations. We knew that these nations could pay their debts without the reparations. We know that they can pay their debts now by transferring an insignificant part of their expenditures for war in their budgets to the debt part of the budget.

We also know that, aside from Germany, no country involved in this debt business has less "capacity to pay" just now than have the taxpayers of this country.

And we likewise know that there can be no cancellation; that there is an honor obligation somewhere that must be met; that the money we loaned to Europe, which Europe wants us to "forgive," we had to borrow; that this money we borrowed to loan to Europe must be paid back by us; that if Europe does not pay us what she owes us we shall have to add the eleven billions to the burdens of our own taxpayers.

So, all bunk aside, all deception aside, all high finance by the international bankers aside, the matter of "cancellation" resolves itself into just this:

"Shall American taxpayers pay the debts of Europe and assume the burden of the World War?"

* * *

Await Election Before Acting

Congress has said we will not.

The Democratic party in its platform has said we will not.

Mr. Hoover, whose party convention was not quite frank with the people, says we will not cancel, but may "scale down;" having already scaled down enormously.

And we are told, significantly enough we think, that nothing will be done until after the election.

That will be after the people, who may be asked to assume the billions of other people's debts, have fired their gun. It is always safest to gouge the people after they have cast their ballots.

* * *

Can't Aid Americans? Then No Aid to Europe

It is now announced that Mr. Hoover is prepared to consider Europe's "capacity to pay."

He knows that if she cuts her war budgets she will have the capacity to pay her debts to us.

He knows that if France, for example, taxes her own people as we are taxing our own, she will have the capacity to pay.

And he himself has but recently made a statement which shows that he knows we do not have the capacity to pay the cost of the war we did not will, and did not bring about.

In his conference with Speaker Garner and others, in which he was fighting an adequate relief measure for the American people, Mr. Hoover is quoted as follows by Mr. Garner in a speech in the House:

"I heard him say last night in reply to my question, in which I asked, 'Do you believe that the appropriation of $332,000,000 will bring on a panic?' that he was afraid of it. He said it might and that it would be a shock to the country."

If we cannot afford $332,000,000 for the relief of Americans we have no capacity to pay the debts of Europe reaching into the billions.

* * *

False Statement Beclouds Issue

The Senate passed the Garner-Wagner relief bill, as it should, and Mr. Hoover vetoed it because he is opposed to the use of federal money for loans, unless the money goes to the bankers and the railroads.

He has set a class aside to be the privileged—and that is running true to his philosophy.

We are sorry that the President permitted himself to be put in the position of misrepresenting a fact by Ogden Mills, who wrote his statement on the Garner bill. Therein he said that it provided for loans to private business enterprises with any old kind of security.

That is a false statement; a maliciously false statement; for the Garner bill provides for loans only where adequate security is given.

The malice in this deliberate misrepresentation raises the question as to whether the security Mr. Hoover has been getting for the loans to railroads and banks is "adequate" in every case.

* * *

Challenge to Garner Stupid G. O. P. Move

We are in the midst of a grave crisis and the government must help. That is the reason no one objected seriously to the loaning of vast sums to banks and railroads. We understand that at this time, $1,600,000,000 of the two billion has been loaned. Just how much of this was secured by "any old kind of security" we do not know; we have no doubt that some bad loans were made. Of course, we are going to lose money, but, as in war, we must expect it.

But how stupid of the acting Republican leaders in the House to challenge Speaker Garner and the Democrats to investigate the Treasury Department at this time. How did it come about?

Garner had said that he was not in favor of an investigation at this juncture, lest it further disturb the country, and Mr. Michener, representing Mr. Snell, invited or dared him to investigate.

"Very well," said Garner, "if that is what you want."

A resolution for such an investigation was pending at the time the challenge was made. And Garner said:

"If the Republicans still want the investigation we will make it. I have sufficient data to show the necessity for an investigation, but if they will admit it will alarm the country, we will drop it. It's for them to say."

And so Mr. Ogden Mills and Eugene Meyer were invited before the committee, which will determine, to say whether they want an investigation. They are invited to reiterate the challenge of Mr. Michener. If they do, there will be an investigation. If they admit it would have a bad effect the investigation now will be dropped.

* * *

Not Wisdom Now To Ask Inquiry

All of which brings us to this point: the state of the public mind today is not such as to warrant the old time arrogance and defiance from the Hoover administration or from High Finance.

With every desire to be helpful, we would suggest that in these days it will be best for them to sing sweet and low. They both have too much to answer for, to make it wise for them to invite investigations.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Planting a Tree

Here I will plant a tree
To make a home for song,
The thrush's soaring ecstasy
Through all the summer long.

While marching years go by
Still upward it will grow
And wave gay signals to the sky
And golden fields below.

Its shelter it will fling,
Grown wider year by year;
No rain's cold lances in that ring

Here I will plant a tree
Where kindly winds will croon,
The friend of lovers yet to be
Beneath a summer moon.
